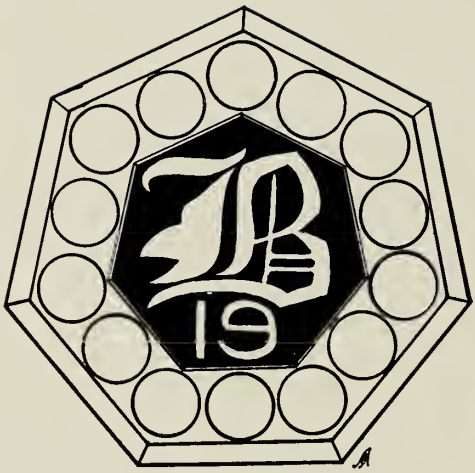
THE MIRROR 1919

MIRROR



19

Dedication

To George Colby Chase, our late president, whose ability as a scholar and educator, whose constant devotion to building up our college, and whose kind consideration for the welfare of others has endeared him to all true Bates men and women, this volume of "The Mirror" is affectionately dedicated.

FOREWORD

CARRYING out the plans of the preceding class, the 1919 editorial board has endeavored to further develop the idea of a college annual. Confronted, at the beginning of the year, with war conditions and the loss of many of our classmates, the successful production of the Mirror seemed impossible. The signing of the armistice and the return of former students led to the election of a new board. This year, in attempting to carry out our agreement with the other classes we have furnished much additional material. We have endeavored to give a complete record of the S. A. T. C. unit at our college as well as a record of our regular college activities. If this result of our efforts should serve to bridge the chasm between us and the past and rewaken in us memories of our days at Bates, our purpose will have been achieved.

ALBERT CONRAD ADAM, A.B.

Born September 21, 1892, Hanover, Germany; Football (1, 2, 3, 4); Wrestling (1, 2); Spofford Club (2, 3, 4); Deutscher Verein (1, 2, 3,); Military Science Club (2, 3, 4); Politics Club (4); Student Council; Ivy Day Speaker; Last Chapel Committee.

"Ad" came to Bates after a four year enlistment in the United States Army. He soon proved himself to be a man of high principals and true scholastic ability as well as an athlete of more than average prowess. Even Harvard and Yale fell for him on the mat and every New England college feared him on the football field. "Ad" is also there in track. We have learned to respect his opinions, even tho he is inclined to follow the same, and value him highly as a leader, a true American, a friend, and a "regular fellow."

EDWIN WENTWORTH ADAMS, B.S.
"Ed"

Born August 13, 1895; Jackson, Maine; Edward Little High School, '14; Jordan Scientific (3, 4); Deutscher Verein (3, 4); Spofford Club (3, 4); Politics (4); President Jordan Scientific (4); Asst.-Manager Hockey (3); MIRROR Board; Assistant Chemistry (4).

Take a good look at this man, for sometime in the future when you read the accounts of some scientific discovery that E. W. Adams has given to the world, you may recognize in the eminent scientist, a former classmate. However, Ed is far from one-sided, for if you ever hear him discuss the economic problems of to-day with Prof. Carroll, you may think perhaps that he will some day hold a position in our legislature. Also, he believes in physical as well as mental exercise, and to this end he insists on walking from Auburn everyday in all kinds of weather, with great speed. Certain of our co-eds who daily traverse the same path, have often wished that he would stop once in a while instead of rushing past them, like Soc doing his half-mile walk, and merely giving them a bow. But we can bank on his future success, for brains with energy to apply them is a winning combination.

LINCOLN JAMES AIKENS, A.B.
"Link"

Born at South Windham, Maine, Dec. 7, 1898; Windham High, 1914; Politics, Treasurer (4); Military Science; Phil-Hellenic; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (4); Class Track (1); Class Football (3); A.B.; Home Address, South Windham Maine.

"Link" is a bashful, retiring fellow. We have found it hard to get acquainted with him, but once our labors in that line having been rewarded we find the result well worth the effort. He spends most of his time trying to persuade the fellows that he is an embryonic minister. He has an extremely delicate digestive organism and is loud in his denunciation of the Commons menu. There are faint rumors that "Link" has aspirations in the "Coed" line. We wish him success in whatever excursions into the realm of Domestic Science he undertakes.

DAVID YOSEF ALKAZIN, B.S.
"Al"

Born April 9, 1893, Abbey, Mt. Lebanon, Syria; Westbrook Seminary; Military Science (3, 4); Cercle Francais (2, 3, 4); Sec. and Treas. Class Track (1, 2, 3); Junior Exhibition; Assistant in Physical Training (3).

Listen! The buzz of a saw is heard in the hall, but it is only Al repairing some broken door in Parker. Al is a Jack of all trades, but his fort seems to be as a carpenter, and he may be seen frequently striding across the campus with his hammer and saw. When the call came, Al was one of the first to leave Bates to go to Plattsburg; and during the next winter, he was an ardent supporter of military work in college. The following year, he became a sergeant in the U. S. Army, and is now enlisted in the third Maine Infantry. Al's ready humor and his fund of good stories has won for him a host of good friends and we all wish him success.

William Arata

"Bill"

Born Oct. 24, 1896, Boston, Mass; Bar Harbor High School, '14; Y. M. C. A.; Military Science; Cercle Francais; S. A. T. C.; Football; Class Football, Capt. (3); Boxing Instructor (4); A.B. Degree.

Here ladies and gentlemen is William Arata from Bar Harbor. The man who in his youthful days associated with real society. "Bill" has grown away from his home town since entering college and now seeks his fortune during the summer months in Connecticut. Does Bill like Conn? Ask him about the summer of 1918. "Will" is a hard worker and his efforts have not been wasted. It isn't easy to work one's way through college and eat at Churchhill's when in New York, is it Bill? Besides his college work, he is boxing instructor and an officer of the Cercle Francais, which shows that he is capable and well-liked.

Alma Swartz Blaisdell, A.B.

Born Providence, R. I., Feb. 8, 1897; Lewiston High School, 1915; Enkuklios; Y. W. C. A.; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Seniority; Le Petit Salon; Baseball (1, 2, 3); Captain Volleyball (3).

Have you seen her with head erect, firm as to step and also chin, her shoulders back with the grace of a fawn and the carriage of a queen, sailing over the Avenue and onto the Campus? Yes its "Al". "Al" has a way, it's hard to describe it, she makes us feel when she comes into class as if she had left the limousine outside with the chauffeur in gold and blue. We, the less majestic of 1919, will never forget her regal tongue when it squelched us with its caustic answers, never forget that little feeling, the sinking of the ego. Yet who is a better sport, a more charming smasher of Rand Hall night rules?

But ah, a flaw on the perfect pattern, a leaning toward the atoms of humanity, men! No end to their names, no end to their fames! In the sea of he- allurement, among the piscatory mass, one has survived where all others have perished. We wish him luck and long possession of one of the most popular and brilliant girls '19 has to offer.

RAYMOND WARD BLAISDELL, A.B.
"BLAIS"

Born Oct. 16, 1897, East Franklin, Maine; Franklin High, '14; M. C. I., '15; Military Science (3, 4), President (4); Sophomore Debate; Y. M. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Prize Speaking (1, 2, 3); MIRROR Board; Class Hockey (4); Class Track (2); Student Council (4); Debating Council (3, 4); Manager, Baseball (4); Second-Lieutenant Commission, Plattsburg, July, 1918; A.B. Degree.

Here before us is Raymond Blaisdell from M. C. I. Ray drifted down here in the fall of 1915 and has been drifting along ever since. In spite of this handicap Ray has worked hard, and to see his beaming countenance and pleasant disposition, little would you suspect him of "copping" a Lieutenant's commission at Plattsburg. Blais has a habit of winning in anything that he tries to do. For instance, the handsomest man in the class. We wonder how he got the Rand Hall votes, for he has never been inside the portals of that unlucky building.

Blais is always doing one of three things, either doping out a Baseball trip to worry the athletic committee, plugging on his government to keep himself worrying, or—. To fully appreciate this all-round good fellow, we must look back to the good old days of fellowship in Parker when friendship came before everything else.

RALEIGH BARTON BOOBER, A.B.

Born April 21, 1894, Lincoln, Maine; Lee Academy; entered with Class of 1917; Politics Club; Military Science Club; Varsity Track; Class Track (3); Class Football, Captain (4); left 1918 Class to enter the service.

First 1917 enjoyed his smile, then 1918 claimed his grin, and now 1919 is proud to graduate him, laugh and all. He may have been a bona fide 1918 man, but he is a real bone funny 1919 man. Raleigh sure does fit with the fair demoiselles and with everyone else, too. And, lest you be misled, he is a real student, a hard worker, and an all round regular guy. Here's to you "Candidate" Boober! "Keep 'em rolling!" Never forget the days of your youth. Remember the steps of Rand Hall and sundry places in the two cities. In a word, be thankful for all small things.

HORACE REGINALD BOUTELLE
"Bout"

Born April 12, 1895, Amherst, N. H.; Milford High School, '14; Jordan Scientific Society; Military Science; B.S. Degree.

The war upset "Bout's" college career, as it did many other things and he came back to college to graduate with us. We gladly class "Bout" as a bona fide 1919 man, because even if we did not know him, his loyalty to his country, his giving his all to his country's service is enough cause to place our full confidence in him. To say nothing of his optimistic disposition and his characteristic stick-to-it-ive-ness, which has won for him the admiration of his classmates. Such qualities are bound to bring him success in bigger fields.

EDWARD H. BREWSTER, A.B.

Born in Jersey City, N. J., June 24, 1885; Columbia Preparatory School; Boston University School of Theology, 1912; Varsity Debating Team (4); Drew Medal (4); Class Chaplain (3); Pastor of High St. M. E. Church; A.B. and S.T.B.; Home Address, 24 High St., Auburn, Maine.

This full fledged Parson came to us at the beginning of our Junior year. Happy was the turn of fate that brought him to us. He has added much to our prowess as a class, as his smooth polished, and fluent manner of speaking won for him a place on the varsity Debate. He is a popular and successful pastor and his success as a preacher is universally acknowledged. Yet we predict that in the future he will reach even greater heights of usefulness and service as a Sky Pilot.

HERMAN ADELBERT BRYANT, A.B.

Born West Paris, Me., June 24, 1898; Home Address, R. F. D. 3, Bvt. 3, South Paris, Me.; Paris High, 1915; Military Science Club; Politics Club; Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Football (3); Junior Exhibition (3).

First in history (ask Line Aikens if you don't believe it), first at the dinner table (and last incidentally) and first in the hearts of the fair dames of Lewiston and Auburn is "Soc" Bryant, greatest of all "Parisites". From the day he first stepped forth from the wilds of South Paris and decided to choose Mr. Bates College as his Alma Mater until the present day, "Soc" stands as the "only original" in the class of 1919. Our eminent biologists after four years of extensive research have failed to classify him; our experienced chemists have utterly failed to analyze him. The only conclusion at which they can arrive at is that he is just plain "Soc"—no more and no less. A dearth of sufficient space prevents us from narrating at some length sundry experiences in the college life of our hero. We shall remain profoundly silent about a certain back-porch experience; neither shall we dwell upon the phenomena of colored waters claimed to have been observed by "Soc" at the Commons; nor shall we discuss at length sundry conversations which he is reported to have had with the high Sheriff of Oxford County; we will also refrain from commenting upon his harrowing experiences on the farm; and we are sorry that we are unable to eulogize his walking ability even if "Al" did beat him out down at City Hall. Anyway "Soc" has got the old fight, and it does not take much of a prophet to predict that he will make good not only at the half-mile walk, but at his life work as well.

ROY JONES CAMPBELL, B.S.

"Camie"

Born Georgetown, Me., Dec. 20, 1896; Sabattus High School, 1915; Jordan Scientific (3, 4); C. O. T. S., Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky.; Assistant in Biology (4); A.B.; Home Address, Sabattus, Maine.

This quiet lad from Sabattus we have learned to admire in our course here at Bates. We know him as a "good conscientious student". We have not seen much of him for he has spent much of his time on the comfortable and luxuriant(?) electric cars which run between Lewiston and Sabattus. Roy is not much of an athlete but he sure can hunt and fish. He has been especially successful as a big game hunter, in the "Zoo" laboratory. We predict for him good fortune in that greatest chase of all, the hunt for success.

BENJAMIN MEYER CANTER, B.S.

Gardiner High School, 1915; Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Military Science; Press Club; Deutscher Verein (3, 4); Senior Member Executive Committee (4); Cercle Francais (2, 3, 4); Chairman Executive Committee (3, 4); Publicist (3); Baseball Editor, STUDENT (3); Class Baseball (1); Class Track (3); Class Football (3).

Sh! (Finger on your lips). Here comes "Benny". He is quiet and self-effacing, but he is well acquainted with the ins and outs of Lewiston. His chief interest, outside of getting by at Bates, is to uphold the prohibition traditions of Maine. His favorite book is "La Question D'Argent". As for co-eds, he doesn't let the species worry him, but prefers to enjoy the company of the "janes" at the Mystic and Canton Low's. Oh, we're wise to you Ben! You fooled some of us part of the time. The old adage again becomes true. "Still water runs deep."

ANNE MAY JORDAN CHAPPELL, A.B.

Born May 10, 1896, Saco, Maine; Thornton Academy; Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2); Seniority (4); Glee Club (3, 4) Manager (4); Enkuklios; Volleyball Manager (3); Athletic Association, Vice-President (3), President (4); Baseball (1, 2, 3); Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Volleyball (1, 2, 3); Track (1); B. W. C.; Y. W. C. A., Association News Committee (2, 3); Red Cross Auxiliary, Vice-Chairman (3); Choir (3, 4); Le Petit Salon, Treasurer (3), Secretary (4).

Anne May is so athletic that she cannot resist sliding down the balustrade in Rand Hall! Especially prominent in all branches of class athletics, she has also time to enter many other college activities. She is never too busy to help. Whatever she is asked to do, she does willingly and efficiently. To attain, in the difficult position of proctor of Whittier House, an enviable popularity with the freshman girls as well as the approval of the powers-that-be, as Anne May has done, simply shows that others outside of 1919 recognize in her those qualities of fairness, dependability, and loyalty which make her such a jolly good friend. She has, throughout her college course, been a credit to her beloved Thornton; and next year and in the years to follow, she is bound to be a credit to Bates.

Cecelia Christensen, A.B.

Born Nov. 15, 1895, Bangor, Maine; Bangor High School; President, Entre Nous; Seniority; Vice-President, Macfarlane Club (3, 4); Phil-Hellenic Club (2, 4); Deutsche Gesellschaft (4); President, Y. W. C. A.; Glee Club (3, 4); Choir (1-4); Hockey (2); Freshman Prize Speaking; Sophomore Debates—prize; Junior Exhibition—prize; Senior Exhibition—prize; Magazine Editor, Bates Student (3); Ivy Day Ode; Latin Assistant (4); Numerals.

Why, yes, certainly; Cecelia will be very glad indeed to do it for you, tho she has a cabinet meeting, a choir rehearsal, an appointment with a Y. W. C. A. secretary, an essay in Bib Lit, and a telephone call, all coming in the next hour. We've simply had to give up trying to figure out how she does it all; it's too much for us. In spite of all her various stunts, however, Cecelia has time to chat with you almost any evening; and if you want a real, honest-Injun good sport, just try her on a house party. Don't expect to get ahead of her in repartee, tho; for she is an adept in that, and usually demolishes her opponent in short order. For unfailing courtesy, real friendliness, and ability to do everything from crocheting to playing the organ, we all go straight to Cecelia. And, just between friends, we aren't to be a bit surprised when she does all sorts of splendid things after she leaves college. She just naturally couldn't help it.

Ralph Porter Coates, A.B.

"Beauty"

Born August 31, 1896, Easthampton, Massachusetts; Easthampton High School, 1915; Class Track (1); Assistant Manager Track (3), Manager Track (4); Junior Exhibition (3); Senior Exhibition (4); Greek Play (4).

Look him over. Ralph, reputed by others and advertised by himself, the best dressed dandy of Mr. Bates' College. He it was who came to our midst with the firm intention of holding first place among the Beau Brummels that yearly infest Rand Hall. But the rigorous rules of that domicile took from Ralph all zest for fastidious competition, so he soon betook himself to a more appreciative field, across the river. Here his Chesterfieldian appearance soon gave him influence and a stable position among the four hundred. Such a suave and elegant manner can not be resisted and search as you might in the Classic halls of Parker none can surpass him as the extra-mural social lion. In the dansant too does he reign supreme and his admirers of Gorham town recently voted him first place among a host of aspirants in the Terpsichorean art. His wonderful managerial ability is also worthy of mention and that same loftiness of manner subordinates all others to his slightest whim. Bravo for Ralph and as he goes forth to conquer the world may that haughty brow never be lowered to the level of his fellow proletarians.

William Joseph Connor

Born November 21, 1897, Lewiston, Me.; Lewiston High School, 1915; Class Track (3); Y. M. C. A.; Assistant in Chemistry (4); Mirror Board; Cercle Francais; Jordan Scientific.

"Bill" may not fit very well at Rand but he surely is a man's man. He's not always telling us about it, but we've found out that he is a scientist and a student with a genuine sense of humor and a proper appreciation of the other fellow. We regret that he didn't live on the campus for we would have known him still better and "Bill" is a fellow worth knowing. And yet there are advantages in being a dweller in the city aren't there? We have faith in this man's success in life. A man who can live among the test-tubes with Doc Jordan for three years need have no fear of the future.

Ruth Anne Cummings, A.B.

Born Belgrade, Maine, August 8, 1897; Belgrade High School, 1915; Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Y. W. C. A. (4); Enkuklios (4); Red Cross (3, 4); Y. W. C. A. Convention Committee (4).

If ever you are in a puzzling situation, just call on Ruth. She can extricate you from any kind of difficulty. Whenever you need an ever-ready helper on committees, or someone to plan up a good time, Ruth is right there with bells on, willing to do her bit and much more. She is never more happy than when treating the girls on "boxes from home", the delicious contents of which many of us have sampled at spreads and Sunday morning breakfasts. Her head is full of heaps of pranks with which she frequently tricks the members of Cheney House. The one problem is to keep her quiet, but really— Cheney House likes her noise.

William Joseph Davidson, B.S.

Born June 6, 1894, Gardiner, Maine; Gardiner High School; Westbrook Seminary; Musical Club (2); Cercle Francais; Student Council (3); Class Baseball; Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 4); "B" (1, 2, 4); United States Naval Reserve Force, Ensign.

When the cognomen "Dope" was wished on "Dave", it must have referred to the colloquial synonym for knowledge, and not in a derogatory sense, for he has given us ample proof of his ability in academic work, athletics, and in the navy where he obtained the rank of ensign before hostilities ceased. "Dope" is not spectacular except in his batting, but there is no lost motion in his makeup, and in the art of getting the most accomplished with the minimum of effort, he is unexcelled. In addition to his other qualities, "Dave" is a recognized authority on perplexing problems of philosophical, ethical, and marital nature, but his real sentiments are often masked by his humorous interpretation of such subjects. When "Dave" is shaved and dons a clean collar, he compares favorably with any of the clothing advertisement models, and combining as he does a pleasant disposition, charm of manner, and sparkling wit, would be a great favorite among the fair sex. Someone discovered these qualities long before we did, however, and since his sophomore year, "Dave's" chief week-end occupation has been commuting to Gardiner.

Clinton Arthur Drury, A.B.
"Art"

Born Easton, N. H., Sept. 26, 1893; Tilton Seminary, 1915; Delta Sigma Rho; Y. M. C. A.; Spofford Club, President (4); Phil-Hellenic, President (4); Military Science, Executive Committee (4); Polities Club (3, 4); Executive Committee (3); Debating Council, President (4); Sophomore Prize Debate; Varsity Debate (3); Drew Medal (3); Manager of Tennis (3), "B"; Editorial Board of Student (3, 4); Editorial Board Mirror (4); Class President (3); Sophomore Prize Speaking Division; Student Council (3, 4); Senior Exhibiton, Bates Unit; Plattsburg, S. A. T. C. Summer 1918; 2nd Lieut., Field Artillery U. S. A., F. A. C. O. T. S., Camp Taylor, Ky.; A.B.; Home Address, Alexandria, N. H.

"Art's" record speaks for itself. He has been connected with nearly every college activity since his arrival here. Some say his success has been due to his ability to bluff. If that be so he is surely a master for his attainments have been great. He has gained renown in various spheres, as he is a student, debater, literary light and actress. "Art" is a perfect lady when he is dolled up, and has played many important female parts. He even exceeds Portia herself in the ability to send "fair speechless messages". He has thoroughly convinced us of the "realizm in Art".

MARION DUBOURDIEU, A.B.

Born August 19, 1896, Dexter, Me.; Dexter High School, 1914; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Le Petit Salon (3, 4); Enkuklios; Tennis Manager (4); Athletic Board (4), Tennis (1, 2, 3, 4); Ramsdell Scientific Club, Executive Committee Chairman (4).

"I will not retreat a single inch and I will be heard!"

That is, she will be heard if she happens to be amongst her intimate friends! But if she doesn't know you very well her tongue will be silenced by a sweet and blushing modesty. Do you know her giggle? It's like the Brook of literary fame— it goes on forever. There's a little touch of pessimism in her make up, which inclines her to suspect the weather man of trying to kid us about the prevalence of sunshiny days, but she more than makes up for that by her ever-present sense of humor. We won't say either, that she's stubborn, but there's a certain firmness in her character that one does not often succeed in overcoming. We might add, for the benefit of those poor unfortunates who have never had the privilege of discovering it for themselves that she's a good sport, an ideal neighbor and an invaluable friend.

MARION CLIFFORD DUNNELS, A.B.

Born Cornish, Maine; January 10, 1898; Cornish High School 1915; Y. W. C. A.; Athletic Board (4); U. A. C. C.; Seniority; Enkuklios; Phil-Hellenic; Red Cross, Vice-President (3), President (4); Hockey (3, 4); Volley Ball (1, 2, 3); Basket Ball (3, 4); Captain of Volley Ball (3); Alumni Editor Student (3); Personal Editor MIRROR; Vice-President Class (4); Assistant English (4); Leader Freshman Bible Study (3); B. W. C.; Class Ode (4); Ramsdell Scientific Club; Dancer, Greek Play; Commencement Honor,

Marion is noted for efficiency of the best type— good clean plays in studies, fun, friendships or athletics and extraordinary results in each. Then she has passed the supreme test of character, to be able to smile and be cheerful in the face of great sorrow. Unparalelled powers of concentration, self-control are the keynotes of her college course. Studies and other duties come first, then fun and heaps of it. Yet Marion is no goody-goody, no pinkey white girl except in complexion. She is a stubborn child and no power can change her mind whether it is made up concerning Cecil, the weather, religion or clothes. Never will we forget that mile of tongue directed toward us or those dimpled cheeks, those quaintly roguish eyes on the occasion of our dorm frolics when Marion entertained with her famous song, "I with I wath big".

CLARENCE ALTON ELWELL, A.B.

"Hippo"

Born Oct. 16, 1897, West Buxton, Maine; Buxton High School, '15; Cercle Francais (3, 4), President (4); Varsity Club (2, 3, 4); Y. M. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Hockey (3, 4); Class Football (3); Class Baseball (1, 2); Varsity Baseball (2, 3, 4); A.B. Degree.

Hippo was first known to us at the Freshman-Sophomore baseball game, when an easy grounder found a hole in his glove and rolled for two bases. Later in the year through the usual process, he became known as the "Crab". As Hippo developed and years passed he grew from a crabbing freshman to a killer of the feminine sex. This became known when the halls of Parker were constantly re-echoing "Hippo" Elwell, telephone. However, "Hip" developed in other directions and is one of our mainstays on the mound, being the third pitcher to trim Harvard in our school history. Here's hoping your development continues "Hippo" and some day may your training as President of Cercle Francais be evident in larger fields.

ARLOENE FARNHAM, A.B.

Born Auburn Maine, June 30, 1898; Edward Little High School, 1915; Entre Nous; Y. W. C. A.; A. A.; U. A. C. C.; Enkuklios; 1919 Town Girls' Club

We "saw her charming" but we "saw not half
The charms her downcast majesty concealed."

A wise little mouse, sleek and brown, scurries from Littlefield's Corner every day and into our midst, gets what she wants without anyone knowing it, scurries back almost before we know she's been here! How we would like to set a trap for this noiseless little creature and make her tell us just what is going on behind that calm, unruffled exterior. One thing we're sure of, there's an indomitable will at work and one or two experiences were enough to prove that it wasn't to be shaken by driving or coaxing. Arloene is a home body first and foremost with an aptitude and love for cooking, sewing, sweeping and dusting. Her place of action for displaying these accomplishments is far from our abode separated by a stretch of Interurban Railway, so that her interests have been divided and we owe her this wee bit of a grudge—that the other end of the line has been uppermost in her affections. Yet Arloene wrestles with the Big college jobs too like math and history and in her assuming way gets there with the winners, hits the tape in the lead!

FREDA FISH, A.B.

Born December 2, 1896, Turner, Maine; Leavitt Institute; Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (3); Enkuklios; Y. W. C. A.; Phil-Hellenic Club (4); Baseball (1, 3); Hockey (2); Numerals.

Freda can smile. She can smile a smile that will warm your heart on the coldest day and bring sunshine however gloomy you may feel. Staunch of spirit, standing bravely for what she believes, spunky in the extreme,—that's Freda. If you could see her in basket ball, wiping up the gym floor as she rolls over and over in a little round ball, you might have difficulty in reconciling that girl with the one who so earnestly advances her theories to Prof. Mac and seeks to be set right on the idea of what constitutes the perfect teacher. But they are one and the same Freda, a girl so brimful of both the joyousness and the seriousness of life, who gives herself so wholeheartedly to everything she does, that it's pretty certain she'll make the right kind of a teacher herself, or the right kind of whatever she wants to be.

TADASHI FUJIMOTO, B.S.

"Fuje"

Born December 27, Tokushirva, Japan, Home Address, Chicago, Illinois; Jordan Scientific Society (4); Chairman Membership Committee Y. M. C. A. (4); Greek Club (4); Class Treasurer (1, 2); Assistant in Mathematics (3, 4); Instructor in Jiu-jitsu (3, 4).

"Fuji" is the guy that put the "plug" in "plugger." He is one of the best little workers that ever stepped upon the college campus. Go anytime of day, or of night for that matter, to the Physics Lab. or the Chem. Lab. and there you will find "Fuji" with sleeves rolled up enthusiastically at work. He is the sort of fellow who analyzes three samples of brass when only one is required, and commences his Senior Thesis months in advance of the date it is due. As a scientist, we predict that "Fuji" will be a huge success.

CLARENCE NELSON GOULD, B.S.
"Cyanide"

Born April 4, 1894, Leeds, Maine; Leavitt Institute, 1914; Freshman Declamations, Prize; Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Baseball (1, 2); Musical Clubs (3); U. S. N. R. F.

Ah, he sleeps and dreams in peace with one optic wide open. Do you want to play? Clarence will play anything. On the last lap of the long journey from over the river, Cyanide plans upon working off his oversupply in front of the chapel before preparing to fool the boys. Yes, and he firmly believes that the front doorway of our Chapel should be sacred for purposes of worship. Clarence also qualifies as an A 1 housekeeper. We look for a clean-up when this quiet confident individual starts on the trail of the almighty dollar. 1918's loss was 1919's gain. Clarence's return from the service filled to the minute one of the many chairs left vacant when our boys answered the call.

STEPHEN PHILIP GOULD, A.B.
"Steve"

Born February 2, 1897, Rockland, Maine; Rockland High; Politics Society (3, 4); Jordan Scientific (4); Vice-President Politics Society (4); President Roger Williams Hall Association (4); The STUDENT, News Editor (4); Assistant in Chemistry (4); MIRROR Board.

Steve is a student, a writer, an actor, and an ardent supporter of all Bates Institutions, including the Quality Shop, but not the Ross establishment. Steve knows the number of steps from the second floor of Roger Williams to the sanctum sanctorum of the Chem. Lab, and he can find the "Repeat" stamp in the dark with his eyes shut. His zeal in the pursuit of the elusive molecule, however, has not prevented him from winning fame in the glow of the footlights. Again and again he has appeared on the Hathorn Hall stage, or the Library steps, in important roles from Shakespeare and Sophocles, with other members of the Spofford Club. College life has not robbed Stephen of a keen delight in the simple joys that have always charmed the truly great, for we have his signed statement to the effect that his chief source of enjoyment all through his college career has been "pestering Soc Bryant."

DORA FRANCES GRAVES, A.B.

Born Exeter, N. H., Oct. 11, 1896; Graduated from Robinson Seminary, 1915; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); New Hampshire Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Mandolin Club (2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Hockey (3, 4); Track (3); Numerals; B.W.

Who is the girl who will wait an hour, if need be, for you to make your appearance around a corner so that she may snap your picture? You all know—It's Dora. Nearly every professor has posed before her camera. Consequently, there are many "mem" books which have a complete set of the faculty in attitudes characteristic of each person. Dora likes to play the mandolin, but she is happiest of all when fighting for the ball on the hockey field. She is a cheerful body, and often smiles when many of us would grumble. Keep on smiling, Dora! It will pull you over many a rough road.

CHARLES ALFRED GREGORY, B.S.

Born August 8, 1895, Woodstock Valley, Conn.; Horace Mann Preparatory School; Military Science; Varsity Track (1, 4); Captain of Varsity Track (4); Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4).

If anyone ever had a misnomer for a nickname, our "Heck Gregory" is such a one. Heck sounds rather farmerish, befitting a backward and retiring disposition, and our friend is the very antithesis. If you want to put one over on Heck, you have got to catch him when he is asleep and then you want to beware of him afterwards. He believes in the freedom of speech, and that man is perfectly capable of piloting himself thru the seas of life, without being pampered by the help of others.

This quality of self-assertiveness has undoubtedly been a big factor in making him an eminent track man. Heck has the distinction of being the only 1919 man to hold a Bates record, that being in the 2 mile run. We feel confident that his determination will bring him many new victories, as he steps out into the life of the world at large.

Mary K. Hall, A.B.

Born Buckfield, Me., March 24, 1897; Buckfield High School, 1914; Entre Nous (1); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4).

Mary is one of our pretty winsome girls who is more inclined to books than to excitement and noise. Although she is not with us on the campus, we may find her almost anyday among a pile of books in some obscure corner of the library. She is the most wondrous busy-body you ever saw. Mary has no equal in history, we truly think she "eats" the pages of the book. Yet Mary is fond of fun and good times, too. Frequently she visits the "Chop Suey" (although she doesn't live in the dorm)—but the remainder of her time she is kept busy writing letters to a "Lieut" in France. Your ability at letter writing and capacity for hard work must needs spell for success in the end, Mary.

Gladys Emily Hartshorn, A.B.
"Glad"

Born August 31, 1898, Milford, N. H.; Milford High School; Entre Nous; Secretary U. A. C. C. (2); Y. W. C. A.; Enkuklios; President Le Petit Salon (4); Manager Mandolin Club (4); Volleyball (3); Hockey (3, 4); Basketball (4); B.W.

Did you ever once neglect a lesson for a good time, Gladys? Not that you aren't right there when it comes to fun, but you have preserved a large share of that conscientiousness with which most of us were endowed when we came to college but which rolled off so easily after freshman year. We have memories of those suit cases that came from home at Whittier House crammed full of eats and shared with the entire second floor! Gladys is intensely loyal and home loving, and home folks occupy such a large place in her thoughts that anyone who knows her knows her family and friends as well. Industrious as she is over history, Gladys has taken time to enter into all kinds of athletics. You may see her, too, almost any day in the week, going down town with her mandolin tucked under her arm to help out on some public affair or to make life brighter for the inmates of the Old Ladies' Home. She has been very quiet about it, but we are wondering about all those letters from Dartmouth. When will we know, Gladys?

Ada Louise Haskell, A.B.

Born December 11, 1897, Auburn, Me.; Edward Little High School, 1915; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Class Treasurer (4).

There's one queer thing about her, and that is that she doesn't even know that Ada Louise Haskell exists! That's what we call complete self-effacement. But this presents a problem, too. How can such a person carry around within her such a vast store of wit and fun as Ada conceals behind her modest unassuming manner? But, oh joy! What fun she is when, on such an occasion as, let us say, a "spread" in her room, she really "gets going!" For three long years she clung faithfully to the "Auburn Bunch", but finally succumbed to the joys of Rand Hall, where her gentle, quiet qualities and genuine unselfishness, coupled with the afore-mentioned ability to entertain, have added steadily to her popularity, and have caused her to be mentioned early in the list of "good sports". If her famous sweet disposition is as successful in instilling Latin into the minds of Presque Isle's budding classicists as it has been in winning friends, she'll get a raise within a month!

Dorothy Clement Haskell, A.B.
"Dot"

Born June 4, 1897, Gloucester, Mass.; Gloucester High School; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority; Phil-Hellenic (2, 3, 4); Massachusetts Club, Secretary (4); Sophomore Debates; Student Board (3); Class Executive Committee (3); Scholarship Prize (1, 2); Greek Prize (1); Latin Prize (3); Sophomore Essay (2); English Assistantship (3, 4); Junior Exhibition; B.W.; Ramsdell Scientific Club.

She's our baby, of course, but she has five feet and one hundred pounds of efficiency! As we are wont to say of her, "She's little, but oh my!" We'd like to find something that Dot couldn't do if she wanted to and furthermore we'd like to see someone who could persuade her that she couldn't do it! You understand, no doubt, that she's one of the kind that, figuratively speaking, "Makes the class go round." There isn't a better sport or a broader smile in 1919, in spite of the fact that certain of her friends apply the term "old-maidish" to her proverbial neatness of person and room. Her latest big accomplishment betrays a phenomenal ability for forcing buds, (the society kind) into full bloom, even when they are—we might as well be explicit and say "he" was—apparently completely frozen.

P. S. The exclamation point is one of her characteristics.

Eleanor Howland Hayes, A.B.

Born Nov. 29, 1897, Livermore Falls, Me.; North Yarmouth Academy; Chairman Community Service Committee, Y. W. C. A. (3, 4); Vice-President, Seniority; Enkuklios; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Hockey (1, 2, 3, 4); Basketball (2, 3); Baseball (2); Sophomore Women's Championship Debate.

Some people are born advertisers; and then again some are not. If we don't know Eleanor very well, we may not realize just how many things she does, because she isn't publishing them broadcast. If we've ever talked with her for any length of time, however, we've been astonished to find out how much outside work it is possible to do without neglecting such commonplace things as lessons. From her very first week at Bates, Eleanor has been on the lookout for something to do that counts. The Children's Home, the Old Ladies' Home, and the city Y. W. C. A. soon found out that they could depend upon her to do anything at anytime, and to do it with the same unfailing enthusiasm with which she plays basketball and hockey. She has pried open most of the rest of us, too, sooner or later; and sent us down to try our hand at Greek classes or office work. Those of us who have ever been fortunate enough to go out to her home— and aren't there a lot of us with whom she has shared it?—carry away memories of some of the very best times we ever had. Keep it up, Eleanor, we're all backing you.

Leonora Franke Hodgdon, A.B.

Born January 29, 1895, Orland, Me.; Eastern Maine Conference Seminary, 1914; Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; Seniority; Phil-Hellenic (2, 3, 4); Petit Salon (3); Glee Club Accompanist (4); Macfarlane Club (4); Sophomore Debates; Student Government Board (3); Rand Hall Proctor (4).

"Love sought is good, but given unsought is better."

When we want to know anything about the intricacies of Rand Hall's domestic life, we go to her; when we want an accompanist for musical clubs, we go to Leo; and when we are "starved" and want someone sympathetically hungry, we go to Leo—and then to "George's". You never fail to find a comrade and a good sport in this young lady, and, at the same time she makes you "feel her dignity" when she sits in her official chair. Now that's "some combination!" She is very useful, too,—being nice and tall—in exploring matters, a little above the reach of some of us! We like her best, however, for her genuine sympathy, an exhaustless store of good nature. You will know her when you meet her, for she will be surrounded by a host of loyal friends—among whom you may expect to find very soon a certain young business man from the Hub.

MARY H. HODGDON, A.B.

Born Rochester, New Hampshire, Aug. 3, 1897; Rochester High School, 1915; Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Vice-President of Entre Nous (1); New Hampshire Club; Glee Club (4); Choir (4); Secretary of Ramsdell Scientific Society (4); Volleyball (1, 2); Hockey (1, 2, 3, 4); Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4); Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain of Hockey (3); Numerals; B.W.

"Rah! Rah! Rah! Mary Hodgdon" is the cheer which comes across the hockey field. All eyes are on Mary, our always there-on-the-spot fullback, who in the nick of time, hits the ball to the wing. She is so calm about it all, too. If you visit Carnegie Science Hall, you will undoubtedly see Mary performing some experiment in Physics, or instructing some underclassman in the art of surveying. Yet Mary does not spend all of her time at Science Hall. As a great lover of nature, she lives much out-of-doors studying the flowers and birds. Being an ardent admirer of Uncle Johnny, she has obtained his enthusiasm for the feathered folk—and loves them.

CECIL THOMAS HOLMES, A.B.

Born Caribou, Me., December 8, 1896; Home Adress, Sangerville, Me.; Sangerville High School, 1914; Jordan Scientific Society; Phil-Hellenic Club; Spofford Club; Politics Club (4); Student Council, President (4); Campus Service Department, Y. M. C. A., Chairman (4); Entertainment Committee, Y. M. C. A., Chairman (4); Press Committee, Y. M. C. A. (3); Editor-in-Chief, Bates STUDENT (3); Class Executive Committee (1); Freshman and Sophomore General Scholarship; Coe Scholarship; Assistant in Argumentation (3, 4); Toast Master, Ivy Day; Senior Exhibition; Greek Play (4); College Publicity Agent (2, 3); Stationed at Camp Devens, August 29 to Nov. 9, 1918; F. A. C. O. T. S., Camp Zachary Taylor, November 10, 1918 to December 2, 1919.

Cecil is probably one of the most efficient guys in the class. He is a Math. shark, and an English scholar par excellence. We cannot but admire him for his keenness of mind, and his brilliancy. Cecil also has a special brand of Scotch humor which has been very evident during his four years' sojourn at Bates. It would not be surprising if he were found to be the originator of most of the practical jokes transpiring about Roger Williams and the campus. If you don't believe so, ask Mr. Lord or Lieutenant Black. As an actor, too, he has established a name for himself, and if there's also any doubt on this point, Prof. Hertell will gladly furnish corroborative evidence.

FRED HOLMES, A.B.
"Freddie"

Born May 16, 1895, Roxbury, Mass.; Austin-Cate Academy; Politics Club, Treasurer (3); Military Science Club; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Class Track (2, 3); Commissioned in the U. S. Army, Nov. 17, 1918.

Fred comes to us from the class of 1918. He left college in the middle of his Senior year and enlisted in the army. Being a hard worker he was soon sent to an O. T. C. and received a commission in the Artillery Corps. After the Armistice was signed he came back to college for his sheep-skin and to all appearance he will carry it off with honors. "Freddy's" quiet and unassuming ways have won him a place in the hearts of his new classmates. He is a good student, a hard worker, a thorough good fellow and we are proud to have him graduate with us.

GLADYS ELIZABETH HOLMES, A.B.
"Kewpie"

"Her angel's face as the great eye of Heaven
shyned brite
And made a sunshine in the shady place."

Born January 1, 1897, Farmington, N. H.; Brewster Academy, 1915; Y. W. C. A.; Enkuklios Board (2, 3); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Spofford Club; Publishing Association, Vice-President (3, 4); Art Editor MIRROR; Ivy Ode, Class Day Speaker.

If you were a genius, a writer, a painter of worth would you hide your achievements away? If you were sweet beyond all words, if you were pretty beyond not a few, if you were witty beyond most, would you hide yourself away? Modesty like "Kewp's" will never again be found! There are few who have been permitted to really know this little weaver of dream tales, this little spreader of sunshine and cheer, the charming idealist, the girl of earnest thot and high minded principles. We have seen our "Kewpie" in many a scrape, the jolliest girl at the stolen midnight spread, the incorrigible flirt, the dean's sore trial, but our choicest memories will be of a never-failing optimist, the best little pal with the comrade spirit that wins every man and girl in college. P. S. On being asked concerning her course here, she stated that she had held an assistantship in the department of co-education. We would like to add that there is an excellent specimen of her careful training to be seen about the campus.

Donald Wheeler Hopkins, B.S.

"Hoppy"

Born March 28, 1896, Greenfield, N. H.; Milford, N. H., High School; Deutscher Verein, Secretary (4); Jordan Scientific Society; Glee and Mandolin Clubs (2, 3, 4); Leader Mandolin Club (4); Student Council (4); Parker Hall Association, President (4); Class Baseball; Manager Baseball (4); United States Medical Corps; 2nd Lieutenant Infantry U. S. R.

"Hoppy" seems just as much a part of our class as he had once seemed an essential factor in 1918. He still has the old squint, the old smile, and the old line. He is always welcome in any open forum in Parker Hall and he doesn't seem to care which side of the argument he's on as long as his room-mates are on the other side. New Hampshire may well be proud of this representative at Bates. We are glad you came back to graduate with us Donald, and we shall always remember you as a good sport and a leader.

Hazel Emma Hutchins, A.B.

Born April 8, 1897, Portland, Me.; Portland High School; Y. W. C. A.; Enkuklios; Seniority; Entre Nous; Spofford (2, 3, 4); Vice-President (3); Class Executive Board (1); Class Vice-President (2); Class Secretary (3); Magazine Board, Bates Student (3); Junior Exhibition; Senior Exhibition; Ivy Day Poem; Class Day Poem.

Hazel isn't very big; and what there is of her seems to be mostly smile. Back of that smile, tho, is a whole lot worth knowing, as you'll find out when you get acquainted. If you want some enthusiasm, the kind that sticks to it, until the job is done, just put her on a committee to get up a class party, or some other kind of a festive occasion, and then watch things happen. As for optimism—we defy anyone to think of a topic so dismal that she couldn't immediately discover thirty-seven encouraging features about it. Hazel has a pigeonhole in the upper left hand corner of her mind, where she keeps all sorts of new and original ideas; and every now and then she pulls out two or three and puts them in a story or poem or play—it doesn't matter which. Sometime, 1919 is going to be mighty proud that it has contributed a real, sure-nuff writer to the world.

Sarah Evelyn Jones, A.B.

Born October 10, 1897, Winchendon, Mass.; Murdock School; Social Service Committee, Y. W. C. A.; Executive Committee, U. A. C. C.; Phil-Hellenic Club; Massachusetts Club; French Club; Mandolin Club; Enkuklios; Seniority; 2nd Team Hockey (1, 2, 3); Volleyball (1, 2, 3); 2nd Baseball Team (1, 2, 3); Track (2, 3); B.W.

When you hear an infectious giggle out in the hall somewhere, you can be pretty sure that it's Sarah, succumbing once more to the ridiculousness of life. When everyone else gets tired and cross, Sarah always manages to keep firm hold of that even temper of hers. She knows how to do one of the hardest things in college; to maintain an even balance between studying, athletics, and just plain good times. We can always count on her for a baseball or hockey practice; and we can be sure that, no matter who else backs out at the last minute, Sarah will go up to the Old Ladies Home or the Children's Home, just as she promised. As for funny stories, she has an inexhaustible supply, always ready for your entertainment if you care to listen. Did you ever hear about that time—?

Margaret Bradford Jordan, A.B.

"Peggy"

Born Auburn, Maine, September 6, 1896; Edward Little High School, 1915; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; A. A.; Phil-Hellenic Club; Seniority; Y. W. C. A.; 1919 Town Girls' Club; Commencement Honor

After the last hair is in place, the last wrinkle out of the spotless shirtwaist, the last little finger carefully manicured, the last bit of dust from boot and suit, Margaret is ready to start on her daily journey to Bates. And so we have her all day long. She's just the same in her studies. When the last math problem is finished, when the last paragraph of history is read and the last chapter of Ed learned, then Peggy is ready to skip off to a dance with Ralph and forget there ever were such things as books.

The best thing about this pink of propriety is her utter unconsciousness of her charm and achievements. Every day we've heard it, "I haven't a thing prepared, I don't know anything about this lesson." Of course we don't fall for this line after Peggy's four years of perfect recitations and strings of A's. But my! What wouldn't you get, Peg, if you ever were "prepared" as you define it?"

Edith Sophia Keirstead, A.B.

Born June 30, 1895, Cambridge, Mass.; Punchard High School, Andover; Y. W. C. A.; Enkuklios; Student Volunteer.

Edith was never known to walk slowly. There's nothing slow about her anyway. Anyone who accomplishes as much as she does has to move swiftly. Not only is she busy every moment on campus, but two evenings a week find her down town, giving gladly of her time and faithful efforts in Y. W. C. A. work. One of Edith's most admirable traits is her unselfish devotion to and pride in that little sister of hers. You never heard Edith say an unkind thing about anyone, did you? Neither did you ever know her to be cross. Anyone who can fry fritters or doughnuts for 200 hungry boys in the early morning when the rest of the college is sleeping has earned the abiding gratitude of said boys as well as the admiration of those less gifted of her own sex. Do you want anything done, done in a hurry and done well? Edith will not refuse you. She couldn't, no matter how busy she is; it's not in her. We are grateful indeed to 1918 for leaving us a legacy of Edith.

Evangeline Baldwin Lawson, A.B.
"Vangie"

Born January 1, 1895, Ahmednagar, India; Cushing Academy; Y. W. C. A.; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Freshman Prize Speaking; Senior Exhibition.

Evangeline has had more exciting adventures than all the rest of us put together. We can't begin to remember in how many different places she has lived, and she knows more different kinds of people than most of us can ever hope to get acquainted with in a lifetime. If you find a pair of rubbers, an umbrella, a text book, a coat, a hat, a box of stationery, or a monkey wrench lying anywhere around, it probably belongs to Evangeline. She's sorry; but she was in a hurry and forgot it. Shall we ever forget those nights in Whittier and Milliken when she told us ghost stories in the dark as only she can tell them, until every shadow seemed full of creepy things? We won't forget, either, the pluck that sent her thru four years of college in spite of difficulties that would have floored any of the rest of us; nor the keen sense of humor that turned so many discouraging annoyances into "the funniest thing that ever happened". In addition to her ability to see the funny side of things, she's one of the most genuinely thotful people we know. Here's wishing you all good luck, Vangie, when you go back to that mountain of yours.

George McLean Lawson, B.S.

Born May 26, 1898; Middletown High, 1915; Cercle Francais (1, 2, 3, 4); Press Club (2); Jordan Scientific (4); Class Cross Country (1, 2, 3); C. O. T. S. Camp Lee, Va.; A.B.; Home Address, Middle Haddam, Conn.

George has always been a good consistent student. Much of his time has been spent examining the inner workings of various unfortunate quadrupeds who have made their way into the Biology laboratory. He has had a very peaceful, happy time rooming in the monastery with Holmes in fact for the last two years most of George's time has been spent with one Holme or the other. Mostly the other. He is a very ardent student of geography and has explored all the nearby territory. The hidden nooks and secret recesses of Rand are no mysteries to him. David's Mountain which used to be a source of wonder and amazement to him in his freshman days is now one of his closest friends and Pole Hill, dear old hill, why he knows every pebble and shrub on the beautiful surface. George has a great future before him as a mender of broken bones.

William Fuller Lawrence, A.B.
"Bill"

Born October 19, 1892, Leominster, Mass.; Mt. Hermon School; Jordan Scientific; Y. M. C. A. Secretary (2), Vice-President (3); Athletic Association, Secretary (2), Vice-President (3); Varsity Track, Captain (3); Varsity Relay (2, 3), B (2); Ex-member of the Class of 1918.

Bill is an all-round college man, a true friend and an earnest worker. If you desire to find him from six-thirty A. M. to ten-thirty P. M. you must look either at the zoo-lab, the chem lab, or the Commons. But he doesn't confine his enthusiasm to these buildings for in the spring of 1916, he won the state championship in the quarter mile. In his Junior year, he was made Captain of track and ran with his relay team at B. A. A.

If Bill hits the corners of life with as much zest and pep, as he shows on the running track, we feel sure that he will come thru a winner.

MARION FRANCES LEWIS, A.B.

"Lou"

Born April 6, 1896, East Milton, Mass.; Oliver Ames High School; Entre Nous; Athletic Board (3, 4); Y. W. C. A., Missionary Committee (4); Seniority; Enkuklios; Spofford Club (2, 3, 4), Secretary (4); Massachusetts Club, Secretary (4); Volleyball (1, 3); Baseball (3); Numerals; Class Executive Committee (2); Ivy Day Committee (3); Editorial Board of STUDENT (2, 3, 4); MIRROR Board; Tied for Scholarship Prize (2); Scholarship Prize (3); Assistant in Freshman English (3); Assistant Argumentation (4); Ivy Day Speaker; Senior Exhibition.

A swinging stride down the hall, a merry whistle bubbling over with the joy of living, interrupted by an occasional "Hi, there!", and we know Marion is coming. Shall we vote her the noisiest girl in the dorm? Anyway, its the kind of noise we like to hear. If you want someone to enjoy with you a tramp in the drizzle of a rain or the glory of a June day, hunt up Marion. She's an ardent lover of outdoors. And what would we do without that enthusiasm that has led us in so many rousing cheers and songs? Inside of Marion's head, beside all the things she knows (and they are many, as you'll believe if you know that she has fairly revelled in Prof. Gould's history courses for three years) there is a big question mark. Just where this will lead her, we can only speculate, but we feel very sure that a girl with her sense of humor, squareness, and a feeling of the general rightness of things will come out O. K.

BARBARA HALL MARSTON, A.B.

Born Auburn, Maine, February 21, 1897; Edward Little High School, 1915; Enkuklios; Y. W. C. A.; Town Girl Representative, Y. W. C. A.; Cabinet (4); U. A. C. C.; Entre Nous; Town Girls' Club.

A streak of business scurrying here and there on the paths of duty never led off by men or ice-cream but sometimes by movies and dancing. Thus is our Barbara who does her four miles from fair Auburn to Bates in about twenty minutes without ruffling a smooth hair or moistening a placid brow. Barbara holds a unique position among us. Besides being our champion fast walker, never-breaking-into-a-run, she's noted for her ability to have her work done days in advance. Who ever had their themes written copied, tied with ribbon and laid away in state, almost before a prof. had a chance to announce subjects. That hated book that gives away our scanty attendance at Chapel has been in the hands of a faithful monitor, Barbara, for four years and has been the bane of our college life. We will forgive her tho, for we love her for her sweet-smiling generosity ever ready to hand over to the idlest delinquent the fruits of her careful labor.

Horace Charles Maxim, B.S.

Born October 15, 1895, Pittsfield, Maine; Maine Central Institute; Record Strength Test (1); Varsity Football (1); Varsity Baseball (2, 3, 4); Class Hockey (3, 4); Class Track (2, 3, 4), Captain (3, 4); Assistant Manager Baseball (2); Varsity Club (3, 4), President (4); President Parker Hall Association (4); President Athletic Association (4); Military Science Society (3, 4); Ivy Day Committee; Athletic Council (4); Mirror Board.

In our freshman year we learned that one of our men had surpassed the best strength test ever taken by a Bates man. We looked around for this Hercules, expecting to see a man of colossal bulk, and much to our surprise we learned that this muscular power resided in the moderately sized frame of Horace Maxim. Surely, looks are deceiving, and if you don't believe it ask someone who has aroused the combative instinct of our friend Max. An unfortunate accident prevented "Hod" from displaying his full worth on the gridiron, much to our loss. However, not even a bad shoulder could stop him from showing us a thing or two on the baseball diamond. We must give "Max" credit for being a hard worker in the many different fields of his college life. We also suspect that Horace has a tender spot in his heart for the opposite sex, but he has always kept that weakness well under control.

Charles Percy Mayoh, B.S.
"Charlie"

Born April 8, 1895, Pawtucket, R. I.; Home Address 1 Dix Avenue, Pawtucket, R. I.; Pawtucket High School, 1914; Sophomore Prize Speaking; Sophomore Prize Debate; Varsity Debate (2, 3, 4); Delta Sigma Rho; Drew Medal; Junior Exhibition Prize; Senior Exhibition; Ivy Orator; Politics Club (3, 4); President (4); Debating Council (2, 3, 4); Intercollegiate Prohibition Contest (3); Bates Student, Editor-in-Chief (4); Mirror, Editor-in-Chief; Class Track (3); Class President (4).

Here's a boy that was not known to many of his classmates during the first two years. But we know you now "Baldie"! And we have to take off our hats to you when it comes to debating and incidentally we admit that you are no slouch as a "co-eder". How about it Mary?

Charlie holds many responsible positions in college as President of the Senior Class. He will always be an honor man to his classmates and a model for conduct in Chapel. By the way did you ever put that letter you got from "Del" in circulation. Charlie will try anything once and if he likes it will try it again which is of course in compliance with room 31. Well, we wish you success and if cupid does not step in we know you will make your mark in the professional world.

Ida Caroline Millay, A.B.

Born June 4, 1897, Bowdoinham, Me.; Coombs High School; Y. W. C. A.; U. A. C. C.; Enkuklios; Athletic Board (4); Hockey (1-4); Basketball (1-4); Track (1-3); Volleyball (1-3); Baseball (1-3); Senority; B. W. C.; Ramsdell Scientific Club.

Ida is one of the foremost athletes who has upheld the honor of 1919 on the athletic field and in the gym. When, after going thru all those famous rotary motions, she hurls that baseball towards Carolyn's waiting mitt, the luckless batter begins to realize that her chances are few indeed; and woe betide the opposite side when she starts down the field with the hockey ball cuddled under her stick. If, after the game is over, you can find her anywhere, you may know that she has disappeared to wrestle with math or government, for Ida had the courage to take two of Prof. Gould's courses in the same year. Perhaps this is an explanation of her jumpiness; at any rate, it's quite startling to hear her split the low-pitched chatter of the dining room by a ghastly shriek over a spider or something. Never mind, Ida; the effects of even Prof. Gould's courses wear off after a time.

Vera Louise Milliken, A.B.

Born May 13, 1899, Old Orchard, Maine; Thornton Academy, Saco; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Seniority, President (4); Spofford Club (4); Secretary, Treasurer, President, Phil-Hellenic Club; Y. W. C. A.; Chairman, Red Cross Committee (4); Leader, Bible Study Group (4); Mirror Board; Greek Play; Commencement Honor.

Here is one of those girls who possesses that inexplicable faculty for having their work done several days before it is required. And yet, with all her high ranks, Vera does not have the appearance of being a grind. She always has time to climb the mountain with you or listen to your troubles or help you over a stiff place in your lesson. But do not be deceived. This quiet, demure little girl has hidden in her inmost soul a longing for something "desprit". And when we remember how after her futile brain has concocted some hitherto unheard-of brand of mischief, we do not wonder that she has long been one of the most popular members of Cheney House Pandemonium. Serenity of character, a philosophy that sets us right when we feel most wobbly, an abundance of what is best in both the real and the ideal things of life,—these are only a few of the fine qualities that have won our love and admiration. A true comrade, a sure cure for that blue feeling, and one good little sport you are, Vera.

John Thomas Neville, B.S.

Born August 25, 1894, Malden, Mass.; High School; Varsity Club (1, 2); Class Baseball (1, 2); Class Track (1, 2); Hockey (2); Varsity Football "B" (1, 2); Vice-President Parker Hall Association (3); Active Naval Service from May 2, 1917, to January 4, 1919, including six months foreign service with U. S. Naval Ry. Battery, operating with the third French and first American Armies.

To appreciate "Johnno", you must know him. Not only a lover of sport and one of the cleanest athletes that ever represented Bates on the football field, but he is also a philosopher of the first order. Whether the subject is "which way does the earth turn?" or "why is a woman?" Considering the latter John brought back some interesting information from Paris. While in the Navy, John's chief ambition was to be "seagoing". He could tie every knot known to the mariner, box the compass both ways, and knew the Bluejacket's manual from cover to cover. His only pastime was to roll up and down the deck with "Makings of the nation", protruding from his jumper pocket, and reciting Kipling's sea-tales. A keen wit, a ready humor, a lovable unselfish nature make "Johnno" one of the most popular men in college.

Mary Louise Newcomer, A.B.

"Cumber"

Born Evart, Michigan, August 4, 1896; Central High School (1, 2); Harper's Ferry High School (3, 4); Y. W. C. A., Cabinet (4); Enkuklios; U. A. C. C.; Seniority; Phil-Hellenic; Macfarlane Club; Choir, President (4); Glee Club; Personal Editor Mirror; Prize Declamations (1, 2); Junior Exhibitee Class (3); Assistant in Oratory (4); Greek Play; Commencement.

A merry laugh, a happy smile and your fit of gloom is over whether you be Faculty or Student when you meet Mary Louise for a snappy, jolly conversation. Is there anyone in college who doesn't know her as the girl who cheers a fellow and fixes things up for him when he's in Dutch? It's been said she has her finger in every pie. We'll have to admit it but also claim that it's a better pie every time just for that. Some manager,—Mary Louise. She's the one who puts thru all the big parties where everyone has a ripping time. Oh, and we'll never forget the way she fits with the Faculty, like silk—just the girl we like to send to the Dean to get things by. Sure, we all from Freshman to Senior know Mary Louise, a girl with a truly aesthetic sense, a brilliant student (if that doesn't mean a studier), an eloquent talker (who does it all the time). Lastly, she is noted for never having had one man but always a number of them, for having the most ability to bluff the profs and for running gorgeous house parties.

Eugene Edward O'Donnell, B.S.

Born July 29, 1898, Lubec, Maine; Lubec High School; Journal Club (2, 3, 4); Class Baseball (2); Class Track (1, 2); Class Football (3); Baseball (3, 4).

To truly depict the fluctuating emotions, the intricate characteristics, the high ideals and aspirations of this most distinctive personality would be the task of a genius. He hails from Lubec, Maine, a fact of which he desires no person to be ignorant. One could not help being impressed with his straight-forward, frank, and jovial disposition. He has been endowed with a weakness for Edgeworth's and women, a superabundance of mirth, and a hilarious laugh blatant and uproarious. Nothing affords the "Kid" greater satisfaction than to so far conquer the flesh as to enable him to get up for breakfast, although he seldom arrives at the Commons until at least 7.15 A. M. Gene's pugilistic abilities, developed by "Soldier Ad" have won him the distinguishment of "fighter". He has worthily upheld this title not only in athletics, but in all branches of his college activities. Gene has ambitions of some day earning his M. D. Go it it "Kid", and may you have the very best possible success.

Charles Earl Packard, A.B.

Born at Newburg, Maine, Sept. 22, 1895; Newburg High 1911; Hampden Academy 1914; Spofford (4); Jordan Scientific (4); Deutscher Verein (3, 4); Macfarlane (4); Cercle Francais; Assistant in Biology (4); Y. M. C. A., Cabinet (4); Press Club (2); Home Address, Carmel, Maine, R. F. D. 3.

It will be hard for us to do you justice "Earle" because for two years you were exposed to contamination as a member of the late class of 1918. It is hard to predict the heights to which you might have arisen had it not been for that influence. We have done our best by you and we are well satisfied with the results. Earle has entered heartily into college activities. He has not been limited in his viewpoint as shown by the diverging character of the societies to which he belonged. He has been a favorite of the Dean's because of his ideal deportment. We are informed by his questionaire that his major sport has been "playing marbles". It is hard for us to imagine Earle taking part in a game which involves so much muscular activity. He is great on research work, the library being his most fruitful laboratory. He has spent much time of late leaning on the librarian's desk studying the interior decorations of that edifice. As an artist he appears to be satisfied therewith. Who is it you say is the best looking girl, the best house keeper and the best dispositioned. For whom did you cast your vote in that great issue of who has the sunniest smile? Go to it Earle. 1919 is with you. "A faint heart never won a fair lady."

Lila Helena Paul, A. B.

Born June 23, 1897, Lewiston, Maine; Presque Isle High School, Edward Little High School, 1915; Y. W. C. A., Cabinet (3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Seniority; Phil-Hellenic (4).

'Tis said—and that by her most intimate friends, too—that no one ever saw her mad! Can you conceive of such a placid disposition? And 'tis also said that no one ever called on Lila for help and was refused. If we put the two statements together, perhaps we'll find the reason for the first in the second! She's always too busy doing things for folks to have time to waste in getting mad at them. The fact that she manages to get considerable real curriculum work into her week's schedule is a perpetual wonder to those of us who know something about her other activities. You see she's a minister's eldest daughter, so she deals extensively in Sunday School and Ladies' Aid Societies and such-like organizations! And she likes it so well that (keep it dark!) she gets fat on it! But with it all be assured that she's never too busy to have a good time!

P. S. Don't misunderstand about the minister's daughter part—you'd never suspect it in the world.

Elsie Arlene Peacock, A.B.

Born May 25, 1896, Lewiston, Maine; Gardiner High School, 1914; Y. W. C. A.; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Enkuklios.

We can't say that Elsie's ever been conspicuous. In fact she's usually invisible unless one has the courage to dig thru the very deepest recesses of Coram Library to find her contentedly perusing poetry of the sixteenth century, Philosophy of the Eighth, Archaeology, the latest "best seller", or the customs of Phrysian people. The most omnivorous reader in the class, she simply petrifies us with her knowledge. But she's not a blue stocking, Elsie believes in living too, but her failings have been carefully concealed from the Campus. Far be it from us to expose her! Suffice it to say that with all her virtues she has some redeeming vices. The whole class is agreed that a girl who can think real, original thots, read all that is best in our language, become such a unerring critic, make such wonderful creations in millinery and costumes, tutor the young of our community so effectively, keep in the good graces of the faculty while having a regular time and keep so still about it is a rare, refreshing novelty.

Edwin Thomas Peterson, B.S.
"Pete"

Born October 21, 1893, Boston, Mass.; Home Address, Dorchester, Mass.; Class Baseball (1, 2); Class Football (3); Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Varsity Track (4); Press Club (3).

"Pete" is a broad subject, not physically, but temperamentally and intellectually. He is remarkable for being consistent only in his inconsistency. While most of us thought of Bolshevism as an embargo on barbers, "Pete" with customary thoroughness investigated the movement and discovered that therein lay the salvation of the world. Eddie is an acknowledged authority on sociology, philosophy and politics and has gained his knowledge from personal observation and association. Many classes have claimed "Pete" but 1919 has held him. With due regard to our greatness we must go fifty-fifty with one who may have something to do with his chronic mental depressions at periods, and his hilarity at the beginning of each new week. It is a difficult task to present Eddie's unique personality in words but here are a few of his most salient characteristics; he is a regular guy, big hearted, a loyal friend, in short a fellow whom we are all proud to claim as a classmate.

Carrie M. Place, A.B.

Born Fall River, Mass., June 29, 1897; B. M. C. Durfee High School, 1915; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority (4); Red Cross (3, 4); Le Petit Salon; Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Secretary of Athletic Association (2); Chairman of Home Service of Red Cross (4); Girls Sophomore Debating Team; Hockey (1, 2); Volleyball (1, 2, 3); Basketball (1, 2); Baseball (2); Numerals; B.W.

Oh, Carrie, we do love to hear you laugh! You are a perfect cure-all for the blues. When you come to see us, your droll remarks and dry humor make us laugh in spite of ourselves. Verily, Mark Twain will never be dead while you are alive. Indeed, we are not deceived in thinking that your inclinations and abilities are limited to the realm of wit. We know that you can do anything whether it be consuming knowledge, chattering French at the rate of 2.40, working for the Red Cross, playing Volleyball, or being just—a good sport.

JOHN HOWARD POWERS, A.B.

"Johnie"

Born May 31, 1898, Gardiner, Me.; Home Address, Machias, Me.; Machias High; Jordan Scientific Society (3, 4); Military Science (2, 3, 4); Vice-President (3); Varsity Club (2, 3, 4;) Y. M. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Baseball; Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Football (3); Varsity Tennis (2, 3, 4); MIRROR Board (4); Prize Declamations (3); Ivy Day Speaker (3); Musical Clubs (2, 3); Cheerleader (3, 4); Class Day Speaker (4).

John is one of these versatile chaps. He is a most efficient producer of music; he can wield a tennis racket most effectively; he engages now and then in baseball, football and track; he is an excellent orator; he delves into the mysteries of Biology most enthusiastically, and he is a cheer leader par excellence. John is certainly an "all round" individual. There is nothing too small or too large for him to tackle. He has been an ardent devotee of "Pom's" during the last four years, but in spite of that fact has found time to emerge occasionally from the recesses of Carnegie Science, and engage in the activities above mentioned. John is no exception so Rand Hall had to claim a share of his time his senior year.

EDWIN MOORE PURINTON, A.B.

Born July 6, 1897, Lewiston, Maine; Edward Little High School; Debating Council (2, 3, 4), Secretary (3); Student Council (3); Politics Club (3, 4); Sophomore Prize Debate (2); Ivy Day Committee (3); Class Football (3); Class Track (3, 4); Varsity Tennis (1, 2, 3, 4), Captain (3, 4); Greek Play.

"Eddie", the popular little tennis Captain, is a man of varied instincts, desires, and tastes; although, generally speaking, he is quite settled in his method of attack, for he wins, be it track, football, or tennis. "Purry" is hardly a "crab" but he has a goodly quantity of Bates fight in his youthful body and might make a pugilist on occasion. Anyway Uncle Sam thought enough of his fighting ability to recognize it with the reward of a commission. Whatever profession "Eddie" chooses, his motto is "Come on, let's go", and he has the stuff. Do not however gather from this the wrong impression of Capt. as we, his classmates, know him. "Eddie" is quiet and unassuming. It usually takes new men some time to find out the real personality of 1919's star tennis player. He is a real man's man, a true friend, has a big heart, and is always fighting for the best for Bates. He has put Bates on the tennis map of the State and of N. E. and has kept it there for four years. "Let's go"!

DYKE LEWIS QUACKENBUSH, A.B.

"Quack"

Born December 17, 1895, Natick, Mass.; Natick High School; Deutscher Verein; Cercle Francais; Politics Club; Military Science, Secretary; Marfarlane Club; Prize Declamations (1); Enlisted in the U. S. Navy, Dec. 7, 1917 and released from active duty, Dec. 14, 1918.

Isn't Dyke a fine looking boy? His ruddy complexion, robust frame, and sleekly parted black hair make him an object of admiration before which women fall like wheat before the scythe. At least he thinks so! During his four years, (Quack), has been prominent in the musical life of the college, and some say that many a spring evening, the melody of his dulcet tenor could be heard beneath a certain window of Rand Hall. After three years of struggle, his perseverance and pluck won him a letter in football, so now he proudly wears the B. We sincerely believe that in the great game of life, Dyke will show as much grit and spirit as he did on the college gridiron.

SARA WILLARD REED, A.B.

Born Jan. 7, 1898, Newark, New Jersey; East Orange High School, 1915; Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2); Cabinet (3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Choir (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); Petit Salon (3); Hockey (2); Baseball (3); Track (3); Chairman Canteen Committee; Assistantship Mathematics (4).

You'd never suspect, judging from the serious mien of this young lady, that she is a practical joker of no small experience. Anyone who has trustingly stepped into the sheets of a bed prepared by Sallie can testify to the efficiency of her methods, however disconcerting we may have found them. But that's only one side of her character. During the last four years she has displayed a remarkable amount of that very desirable and surprisingly rare characteristic—stick-to-it-iveness. And this under circumstances that would have discouraged many another. Yet in spite of several severe illnesses and almost continual ill health, she has managed to play an active part in college activities of all kinds where she has made splendid use of her unusual business ability. Witness the efficient management of the canteen during the brief period in which it was under her control!

STANLEY MOULTON RYERSON, B.S.
"Stan"

Born Feb. 10, 1896, Livermore, Maine; Edward Little High School, '15; B.S. Degree.

"Stan" is another one of those 1918 men that has cast his lot with us on account of the war. During the summer of 1917 the "chipmonk" strayed from the festivities of Auburn to shipbuilding. Whether the automobile (not Ford) was the result of that profitable enterprise or not, is a question that Cheney House girls refuse to tell. Some claim "Stan" liked variety, but as his picture is confined to the exibit of a single room, there is some question. We believe the variety was forced upon him. Never mind Stanley, there may be some truth in the old saying, "Variety is the spice of life."

VERDIL MANLEY SAMPSON, B.S.

Born May 19, 1896, Lewiston, Maine; Edward Little High; Y. M. C. A.; Class Hockey (3, 4); Class Baseball (1, 2); Second Team Baseball (2, 3); Varsity Football (1, 2, 3); "B" (3).

This is Verdil Manley Sampson, the man who mistook Rand Hall for a matrimonial agency. He was first known to us as a lover of poodle dogs and a hater of women. Strange how even the most resolute misogynist will finally bow before the irresistable charm of woman. Even so did Sampson. In fact so completely was "Scuts" transformation that he has become a devout evangelist for the cause of the feminine sex—ask Mosher. However don't get the idea that Matrimony is Verdil's strong point. He is really a very conscientious and hard working lad, whether it be winning fame on the gridiron, or working out the nervous system of the cat down at the Zoo lab. "Scuts" dream of Heaven's greatest pleasure would be to lay back in St. Peter's softest chair with a good pipeful of Edgeworths, and an Angel to scratch his head. Never mind "Scut", Old Boy, we are all betting on you and we wish you the very best of success.

Mrs. Imogene Smith Sampson
"Imo"

Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3); Athletic Association (1, 2, 3); Hockey (1, 2, 3); Basketball (1, 2); Volleyball (1, 2); Baseball (1, 2); B.W.; Class Secretary (2).

For two years and a half there was numbered among the inhabitants of this campus a bit of feminity that we will not soon forget. Who, if he ever saw Imo's sparkling brown eyes, her smooth black hair, her dashing raiment, could have them erased from his memory? To those who lived in the dormitory with her, Imo's apparently unlimited store of energy was a never-failing scene of wonder. Whether the matter at hand were studying, playing basketball, embroidery, movies or cultivating the opposite sex, she was equally enthusiastic and indefatigable. When not busy with any of these occupations, she could always be seen or heard somewhere about, with her inseparable Julia. Imo's qualities weren't all frivolous, either. She was one of our best athletes, and as for domestic pursuits,—well, her clothes speak for themselves, and Scut can vouch for the rest. We sympathized in the misfortune that took Imo away during Junior year, we rejoice in the good luck that gave her back to us last Thanksgiving in a new capacity, that of Mrs. Verdil Sampson.

William Archibald Sawyers, B.S.
"Bill"

Born at Westerly, R. I., March 28, 1895; Westerly High School, 1915; Home Address, 25 Elm St., Westerly, R. I.; Business Manager of the Mirror; Naval Section Bates S. A. T. C., Mess Sgt., Commons Committee; House Committee, Y. M. C. A.; Business Manager, Greek Play.

"Bill" is a hard worker. He came to us from that little state which makes it a habit of turning out good men. "Bill" is no exception to the general rule. His ability as a business manager is generally recognized and we may look for financial success in the production of the Mirror. Bill has also found time to engage in social activities. Whether it be a Cheney House Party or a camp supper, you can depend upon his being right there. He is also one of the best little crabs in the college. The boys recognized this peculiar merit when they placed him on the Commons committee. Whether it be in the professional or business world, Bill, you have our best wishes.

REGINALD MANN SCHAEFER, B.S.
"Red"

Born Sept. 11, 1898, Brunswick, Maine; Hebron Academy, '16; Macfarland Minstrels Club; Y. M. C. A.; Class Baseball (1); B.S. Degree.

When "Red" enters a room, one of two things must happen. Either he turns around and goes out or—. "Red" is really known by only few people because of his remote residence. The time "Red" spends on the campus is occupied equally in the chemistry laboratory during the day and in some choice room in Parker during the late hours of the evening studying(?). Occasionally he has aspirations for manual labor. It is rumored that he worked in a down-town restaurant once. No gourmand had anything on Red for one morning he cooked a dozen eggs for his own breakfast and then he wondered why he got his release. Red is a good scout though and always has a good smile and a joke, and we hope that the four years of study and hard work at our college will bring him all that he aspires for.

RUTH MAY SEVERANCE, A.B.
"Sevy"

Born May 5, 1895, Saco, Maine; Thornton Academy; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Le Petit Salon (3, 4); Enkuklios; Y. W. C. A.; Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Choir (3, 4); Phil-Hellenic (2, 3, 4).

Sevy started in with 1918; but she recognized the superiority of 1919, and has been with us ever since the last half of our Freshman year. If you hear someone down the hall carolling joyfully, "We had the swellest time!", you can be pretty sure that it is Sev, describing one more of the good times that have come her way. If you want to get her started, ask her whether it is any fun to be at Old Orchard in the summer time; or what life is like at Thornton. Sevy is another of those persistently enthusiastic Thorntonites, who never get over regretting that they had to graduate from the best prep school in the state of Maine—or is it the best in New England? Sev spends most of her spare time over in "Del" Andrews' office, doing mysterious things to our tuition bills, and other documents of state. Did you ever notice how still she keeps about her actual work there? Probably she has been engaged in some dark and desperate processes.

Doris Millicent Shapleigh, A.B.

Born March 10, 1898, East Rochester, N. H.; Rochester High School, 1915; Choir (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Mandolin Club (2, 3, 4), Leader (4); Macfarlane Club (4), Chairman of Executive Committee; U. A. C. C. (3); Seniority (4); Ramsdell Scientific Society; Basketball (3); Track (3).

Doris, dressed in her most bewitching style flits thru Rand Hall doorway and down the walk. "Oh, Doris! Where to?" And the answer comes back across the campus, "Chem. Lab. Important experiment today." And we wonder, "Can it be testing the chemicals of love?"

When we see her again, she is probably raising her voice to the rafters of the Chapel or the ceiling of Fisk Room, for Doris has a voice of rare quality which we always love to hear. She can play the mandolin equally well as she can sing, and this year the results of her efforts have been seen in an A. No. 1 Mandolin Club. Doris, we wish you the best of luck for the future—whatever it may be.

Eva Louise Sherer, A.B.

Born Rockland, Maine, January 13, 1896; Rockport High School, 1915; Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority (4); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Red Cross (3, 4); Macfarlane Club (4); Choir (2, 3, 4); Choir Librarian (4); Glee Club (2, 3, 4), Leader (4); Prize Declamations (2).

Smiling? Yes, even in her picture. Eva always wears that adorable smile which indicates her sunny, happy disposition. Always calm, never ruffled, she has modestly sung her way to fame. Hush! Listen! Yes, it is Eva's voice. Everyone always keeps just as quiet as can be when her clear sweet soprano is heard. As leader of the Girls' Glee Club, member of Marfarlane Club, and soprano member of the famous College Quartet, she has attained renowned success. She plays the violin beautifully, too. In the future we expect to hear that she has become a second Geraldine Farrar and is une belle Mademoiselle â grand l'aris, unless fate determines that her talents for cooking and canning keep her in the U. S. A.

Gladys Winifred Skelton, A.B.

Born April 9, 1896, Portland, Me.; Portland High School, 1914; Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Choir (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C. (2); Phil-Hellenic (4); Portland Club (1, 2, 3); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Ramsdell Scientific Club; Class Treasurer of Athletic Association (3, 4); Track Manager (4); Baseball (1, 2), Captain (1); Track (1, 2); Hockey (2); Volleyball (2); B.W.; Assistantship in Mathematics (4).

"While bright-eyed science watches round".

Another one of our eminent scientists! She belongs to that small, picked group of students who carry keys to the inner "sanctum sanctorums" of Science Hall. But she's not like most specialists—she's not tied down to one branch. Far from it, for she can give you lessons in dressmaking and cooking with equal proficiency and thoroughness. That last word—thorough—is a good one for her—that's the way she does things. If you want to be sure to get something put through, get "Freddie" to do it, for if she once starts pushing, things'll have to move even if it takes all night to crank up! We have great expectations for this sedate damsel—perhaps in the line of the fourth dimension, but surely in acquiring a gold band to join that solitaire!

Maurice Small, B.S.

"Beer"

Born May 15, 1894; Hebron Academy, 1915; Football (1); Y. M. C. A.

Don't mind that handle, it's only sarcasm as applied to the god-fearing Maurice, who neither smokes nor swears (in public). Phew, tho, what a gust of warm air, almost hot enough to suffocate any class in which essays to scent the air and kid the professor with his fragrant nothingness. And the way he gets away with it! It's a caution! Just for instance, look at the way he has passed in his Senior work sending pink notes to the faculty from Portland receiving in return sundry A's leading the whole class of 1919 intellectuals in two departments. Now "Beer's" brains did seem a little defunct sometimes, but don't you believe it. It was only native aversion to anything that made a noise like work, coupled with a colossal nerve with successful ability to use his friends. We are all willing to volunteer or tender on demand anything we ever had to Maurice for we knew to whom to proceed when we wanted a good turn done. Yes his college course has been slightly irregular to put it mildly, but he's reformed already, for he has somebody now who has straightened him out, someone he has promised to love, honor, and never disobey.

BLANCHE MARINDA SMITH, A.B.

"B"

Born Springvale, Maine, June 30, 1897; Sanford High School, 1915; Entre Nous (1); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority (4); Red Cross (3, 4); Greek Play Dance (4); Geology Assistant (4).

It would be impossible to describe Blanche. Charming and attractive, she always appears as if she had just stepped out of a band-box. Many of us admire and envy her taste for dress, and wish that we had such an "inborn capacity", à la education. Neither do history sharks grow on every bush, and thus we salute one of Professor Gould's star students. Not all of us have known her intimately, but those of us who have been so privileged appreciate her for her courage and industry, for unselfish and cheerful disposition, and for the spirit of helpfulness. Blanche, truly we say, "We congratulate the lucky-man."

AUBREY EMMONS SNOWE, B.S.

Born April 21, 1897, West Gardiner, Maine; Gardiner High School, '15; Jordan Scienitfic Society; Military Science Club, Secretary and Treasurer; Class Baseball (2); Assistant Chemistry (4); B.S. Degree.

"Aub" is a fellow that never seems to be busy but produces results. There is not a mixture of salts nor a conglomeration of figures that this quiet, studious fellow can not untangle. In fact he is assisting "Foxy" in untangling the calculations of the underclassmen this year. Aubrey has other things to do though. Sometimes he has work at the Y. W. C. A. or at least he puts in some of his time there, and at one time, he was in an ice-cutting project. To really know Aub, it is necessary to be intimately acquainted with him, but those of us have had this privilege, know him to be a hard-working, conscientious, loyal Bates man, always with a kind word and a friendly greeting.

Charles Lloyd Southey, B.S.

Born April 26, 1897, East Providence, R. I.; East Providence High; Class President (1); Varsity Football (1, 2, 3, 4); "B" (1, 3); Politics Club (3, 4); Jordan Scientific Society (3, 4).

Charlie early distinguished himself by grabbing a position on the football team in his freshman year. His prowess in this line has been a potent factor in many Bates victories. Like a good many others, Charlie one day heard the call from Rand, and it is universally conceded that this nice looking curley haired youth was quite a favorite among the fair sex. Soon after Charles debut in society, it was noticed by his closest frends that he was developing a drowsy inertia which affected him especially in the forenoon. Whether there are any just grounds for associating this affliction with Charles social duties is a question we prefer to leave to your imagination. Despite the fact that he was tied last term with "Red" Shafer for the largest breakage fee, yet Charles has acquired considerable fame as a chemist. Whatever the field Charles chooses for his life work we wish him the very best of success. The "Southey grin", and cheery "Hi" will always remain in the memory of his friends.

Gladys Stetson, A.B.
"Glad"

Born East Poland, Maine, March 24, 1898; Edward Little High School 1915; Y. W. C. A.; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; 1919 Town Girls' Club.

"Books cannot always please however good
Minds are not ever craving for their food."

No, Gladys mind craves little from textbooks anyway—we wonder if she has any! She makes stellar recitations tho and only her intimates are wise that she is a magnificent bluffer! Gladys adheres to many mottoes. One is, never to confine herself to studying for any length of time, another that variety is not only spice but the staff of life. Still another is that she will accept invitations from any of our men having no preferences and many a lucky one takes advantage of her fair, square ways of treating them. One of her most important mottoes is that good quality needs little demonstration and notwithstanding the fact that she is never at a loss for a witty, petty remark, that any crowd she joins immediately brightens up and takes on a little pep, still she flatly refuses to show off at any of our many Side Shows. This girl with the inscrutable glance, the airy flippant conversation, is she kidding us or not? How we'd like to know but none of us has been able to really see thru this will-o'-the-wisp. One thing she ought to tell us and that is why after she had blossomed so brightly in society for two years did she put the lid on tight last year only to take it off this year and burst into full bloom, devoting most of her talents to successful picnicing.

Vida Edwina Stevens, A.B.

Born Sept. 13, 1896, Stoneham, Mass.; Stoneham High School; Y. W. C. A.; Bible Study Leader (3, 4); Vice-President of Class (1); Executive Committee of Class; Massachusetts Club, Secretary (1), Vice-President (3); Red Cross (3, 4); Choir (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Spofford Club (3, 4); Chairman of Dramatics Seniority; Prize Declamations (1, 2); Prizee (2); President Enkuklios (4); Hockey (2, 3, 4); Numerals; Ivy Day Speaker; Geology Assistant (4); Mirror Board.

Vida's face and her smile with the little crinkles in the corners of her eyes only reflect the sunshine of her nature and the sweetness of her disposition. (By the way, did you ever see her transform that face into a most remarkable likeness to one of her prehistoric ancestors?) Vida's diminutive size is deceptive, for she is just one bundle of efficiency and get-thereness. The rest of us may skin out of work and duty because we have a headache, but though Vida has the most violent form of a jumping toothache, she always feels "Fine, dear", and will be right out for hockey practise in a minute. Vida has the happy faculty of always saying the right thing at the right time. Whenever you are down in the dumps and think there isn't a thing worth while inside you, go to Vida and get fixed up. She'll give you a sense of your own importance that will surprise you. Go on with your sunshine and your pluck, Vida. This old world needs more girls like you.

Harold Lewis Stillman, B.S.

Born September 12, 1897, Providence, R. I.; Thornton Academy; Military Science; Jordan Scientific Society; Macfarlane Club; Class President (2); Varsity Football (3); Varsity Tennis (1); Class Baseball and Track; Glee Club (1, 2, 3); Politics Club.

Honor student, athlete, good fellow, and the most talented man is his class. Who could wish for more? "Larry" came to Bates with a mighty good family record to live up to. He did it with a vengeance, and then some. If there is some complicated, irrational, intricate, problem of seemingly unsoluble complexity, Larry is one of the first sought for by the troubled party. It makes no difference to him whether this disturbed condition is caused by some difficult math. solution, a solution of one of the laws of physics, a real translation of some nonsensical sentence in Chaucer, or whether it is just one of the minor disorders that occur in everyday student life which needs only the careful handling of a natural diplomat to settle. Larry is also in demand at all the social functions, being a talented singer, piano player, and conversationalist. With a ready wit and a willingness to accommodate a pretty girl to the extent of being an escort. In fact to put in a few words what might take volumes, Larry is a member of Room 1, and is the ideal man of the class of 1919. Each of us wish him the success in life which he has had at Bates, and we join hands to help him succeed.

THERESA STOEHR, A.B.

Born Sabattus, Me., August 16, 1896; Edward Little High School, 1915; Phil-Hellenic Club; A. A.; U. A. C. C.; Entre Nous; 1919 Town Girls' Club.

"Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep"

There are those who can put it over on 1919 tho we hate to admit it. We thot we had a modest little violet, a shy retiring young Miss. How taken in we were! How it rankles in the class bosom to find we didn't know this young woman who has upset the status of labor in a large corporation and sent that corporation into the hands of receivers. Every morning and every night for four years she has caused putrid service on the Sabattus-Lewiston car by her chatting and her smiling. Not a cent of fare has she paid all this time! But we don't blame those conductors, Theresa's smiles are worth it. On the campus we don't see the crafty, scheming woman of the world who "jumps" her fare but the best of pals, a jolly good fellow, a splendid scholar who finds a million other worth-while things to do besides study—but she bluffed us!

FRANK GOODWIN STONE, A.B.

"Stony"

Born October 15, 1896, Lisbon Falls, Maine; Lisbon Falls High School; Jordan Scientific Society (4); Military Science Club (3, 4); Varsity Baseball (2, 3, 4); "B".

Some people seem to be endowed with an unusual amount of pep; Frank belongs to this fortunate class of beings. Whether he is on the receiving end of our varsity battery, or pondering for hours over his math lesson Frank believes in fighting. But do not think for a minute that he does not find time for play, for of late he has not entirely escaped the charms of our co-eds, or at least one. However this last adventure has not harmed him much, for we think that he his still capable of leading our Y. M. C. A. "Stony" has helped us to believe in that old maxim "Work hard, play hard, rest hard, and live happy."

James Herbert Sullivan, A. B.
"Jimmy"

Born July 9, 1894, Houlton, Maine; Houlton High School; Military Science Club, Vice-President (3); Cercle Francais; Aroostook Club, President (3); Senior Exhibition; 1st Lieut. Amer. Ex-Force.

When Jimmy returned from overseas he lost no time in enrolling with the class of 1919. Everyone rejoiced at this decision, for Jimmy's genial nature, ready wit, and never ending store of anecdotes have achieved for him a degree of popularity which few fellows attain. Versatility is another prominent characteristic of this man's many sided nature. Whether it is in boxing, wrestling or other manly pastimes, James is always proficient. Just to show us that he has not gone back any, Jimmy extended his broad field of accomplishments to oratory and as in his military career, he made a success of it. Jimmy is always one of the leading artists in the Bolsheveki found around Parker Hall. We feel sure that if versatility makes for anything, you will cross the tape a winner.

Sanford L. Swasey, B.S.
"Swaze"

Born January 21, 1897, Chester, Maine; Mattanawcook Academy; Jordan Scientific Society (4); Military Science (3, 4); Y. M. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Track (1, 2, 4); Class Football (3); Bates Student Business Manager (3); Class Secretary (4); Assistant in Chemistry (3); American Chemical Society; U. S. N. R. F.

When the train from Lincoln pulled into Lewiston four years ago, a shy modest youth stepped down onto the platform and looked around for Bates College and the Chemistry Department. And now if you would find "Swaze" you must look there; for he spends most of his time helping underclassmen thru the trials and ordeals of Chem. Lab. Any equations in Organic that no one else can write he takes over to Parker, and in the morning brings them to class correctly written and balanced. Such ability is truly a gift. "Swaze" is one of those enviable beings who say little but accomplish much. No better words can characterize him than those of the poet who said, "Still water runs deep".

PHILIP JOHN TALBOT, B.S.
"Phil"

Born June 16, 1896, Gardiner, Maine; Home Address, 81 Highland Avenue, Gardiner, Maine; Gardiner High School; Jordan Scientific Society (3, 4), Secretary (3); Varsity Club; Military Science Club (4); Deutscher Verein (3, 4), Secretary (3); Student Council (1, 2, 3, 4), Secretary (3), Vice-President (4); Athletic Council (4); Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4)), Captain (4); Varsity Football (2, 3, 4); Class Hockey (2, 3, 4); Varsity Hockey (3); Athletic Editor of MIRROR.

One hundred forty-five pounds of fight. "Phil" fought his way from the athletic field to Rand Hall. Athletically, he upheld the tradition of family and native city. His specialties are football and baseball with hockey as a sideline. Externals are often deceiving. Apparently shy and retiring in four years he has developed into a social lion. Hard work has brought him well up in his class in scholastic requirements. Always upholding the principles of fair play, ever willing to lend a helping hand, and to work for the interest of class and college is the record of this true Bates man.

CAROLYN ELIZABETH TARBELL, A.B.
"Carol"

Born South Lyndeboro, N. H., Nov. 26, 1898; Milford High School, 1915; President of Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Seniority (4); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Treasurer of Y. W. C. A. (4); President of Ramsdell Scientific Society (4); MIRROR Board (4); Assistant in Physics and Physical Training (4); Baseball Manager (3); Baseball (1, 2, 3); Hockey (1, 2, 3, 4); Track (2, 3); 2nd Basketball (1, 2, 3); Basketball (4); Volleyball (2); Numerals; B.W.; B. W. C.

Put together—a willing helper, an excellent student, a most skillful girl in athletics, a Y. W. C. A. Cabinet worker, one who is interested in all things worth while, heaps of fun—and you have Carolyn. Just watch her in the "gym" climbing the ropes, vaulting the horse, playing forward in basketball; as a halfback in Hockey she has no equal. The Freshmen more than appreciate and love her, for she has been not only their instructor, but likewise their friend. Carolyn deeply delves into the realm of science, and largely as a result of her effort and initiative, there is now "The Ramsdell Scientific Society". Carolyn, we will bet on you every time.

LILLIAN HARRIET TASH, A.B.

Born February 11, 1896, Lewiston, Me.; Jordan High, 1914; Post Graduate Edward Little High, 1915; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Phil-Hellenic (4); Enkulios (1, 2, 3); Treasurer (4); Freshman Prize Speaking; Sophomore Prize Speaking.

"A merry heart goes all the day."

Attention, class of 1919! We wish to propound a question! 'Tis this; has anyone of you ever, under any circumstances or at any time discovered our "Lil" when her smile was lacking? Ah, the answer is unanimous! Let us proceed further. Has anyone ever been able to unearth about her person a single care or fret? Again the answer is unanimous. There's one thing sure, and that is that if it's worry that brings gray hairs we'll never find one marring the beauty of this lady's golden locks. And if it's true that laughter—not to mention giggling—adds to the avoirdupois, she'll have to mend her ways soon. But there's one more question; did anyone of you ever have a better time in all four years of college than on the occasions of your visits at her lonely old home on Lisbon Road? Great enthusiasm in that answer, Lil! Lillian, we want you to know, shops in Boston, and she looks it everytime, but of course that won't interfere seriously with her business prospects!

CHARLES RAYMOND THIBADEAU, B.S.

"Thib"

Born November 12, 1895, Groton, N. H.; Plymouth High School, 1915; Military Science Club (3, 4); Y. M. C. A.; Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Baseball (1); Class Hockey (4); Ivy Day Speaker; Class Day Speaker; Greek Play.

"It came upon a midnight clear" and landed in Parker Hall. It has been sprinting ever since. Not even a preparedness parade or Doc. Jordan's advanced math. course can stop this boy when he swings into action. Unless its nailed down—heads up, here comes the plumber. Charlie can argue on the blackest subject without expressing an idea. "Thib" will take a chance on anything from washing dishes in Rand Hall to looking up chickens in the two cities. One of the regular guys of the class—always willing to lend a hand. Whether it be as a sanitary engineer or as a teacher in the sparsely settled districts of N. H. we are confident that your smile and ability to get along with your neighbors will eventually make for success.

Amy Adwina Thompson, A.B.

Born Oct. 15, 1893; Biddeford, Maine; Biddeford High School; Greek Club; Enkuklios; Junior Exhibition.

Amy has tried four different classes at Bates; and, after due consideration, has with praiseworthy good taste decided to graduate with 1919. She has had to alternate each year at Bates with a year of teaching; but a proposition like that can't make a bit of an impression on her grit and optimism. No matter what happens, Amy is always perfectly sure that it was good fun; and is eager for the next adventure. She is rather worried, tho, about her ability to be an ideal teacher, like the one described in our education text book. Just what would you do in a case like this—? We don't know what would be the best course in a perplexing situation like that, Amy; but we are sure of one thing; no problem is going to dismay you for very long. It simply can't be done.

Paul Josiah Tilton
"Shorty"

Born October 13, 1897, New Market, N. H.; Home Address, Raymond, N. H.; Tilton Seminary; Polities Club (3, 4); Phil-Hellenic Club (3, 4); Sophomore Prize Debate; Class Hockey (2); Class Baseball (2); Asisstant Manager Tennis (2); Class Chaplain (3); Mirror Board (4); Enlisted Dec. 31, 1917; Ordered to Princeton Flying School; Two Months S. A. T. C. at New Hampshire State College.

Who is this guy? Why "Shorty" Tilton of course. Everybody knows this bundle of nervous energy, this livest of live wires. An uncontrollable sense of humor is one of "Shorty's" afflictions. If he feels like laughing, he has to laugh regardless of consequences. Several of the Profs. were at first mightily astounded at "Shorty's" loud Ha! Ha!; but they have all gotten used to him now. As an extemporaneous speaker, "Stubby" takes off his hat to no one. He always has a speech on tap on any subject—politics, religion or prize-fighting—it makes no difference to him. "Shorty" is a philosopher, an athlete, a politician, and a flirt. He is always on intimate terms with at least a dozen fair damsels. He declares his intention of becoming a minister, but we predict that he will eventually end up in Congress.

Helen Cecelia Tracy, A.B.

Born Aug. 16, 1896, Lewiston, Me.; Lewiston High School, 1914, Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority; Phil-Hellenic (4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3); Chairman Executive Comittee (4); Hockey (2, 4); Numerals; Mirror Board; Junior Exhibition Prize; Ivy Day Speaker; Senior Exhibition; Vice-President Class, 1918 (2); Oratory Assistantship (4); Class Day Speaker.

From it's present pathway part not.
Being everything which now thou art,
Be nothing which thou are not."

Isn't she funny? That's because she's Trace! She's apt to appear from anywhere at anytime. She'll have a hat—her own creation—jammed under one arm, and anywhere from ten to twenty books, ranging in subject from "The Irish Question" to "Mushrooms" precariously attached to some part of her person—they're all over-due at the library, too. You'll hear her before you see her—(that's excess pep spilling over!) and no matter where or when it is, she'll be late, probably because she's been doing something for somebody, and that's because she's Trace, too. Yes, she knows that "procrastination is the thief of time," but she also knows that she'll get by at the last minute, even if she does have to set up all night, because the gods are always with her, and anyway she's Irish—and everybody loves her—so why worry?

Carl Chiang—Tze Tseo, A.B.

Home Address, Wuchang, China; Graduate of Boone University, Wuchang, China; entered Bates in October, 1918.

Tseo came to us in our Senior year. Industrious, steady, cheerful, and ever courteous! It is thus that we have found our new classmate and friend. Indeed, his work apparently serves to keep him hidden most of the time, for when one sees him, he is either carrying books under his arm, on his way to the classroom, or attending some other college duty. Tseo is one of our attendants at Chapel, thus showing the admirable quality of steadiness. But Tseo is not all business, he eats three meals a day at the commons, and carries with him his pleasant smile, perhaps to aid his digestion, but we suspect that it his good nature asserting itself. He is courteous even to the extent of passing food before helping himself, a custom somewhat moribund. Truly, we feel glad that Bates is cosmopolitan, when we become acquainted with his kind.

Evelyn Mildred Varney, A.B.

Born May 12, 1896, Dover, N. H.; Dover High School; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Enkuklios; New Hampshire Club, Secretary, Vice-President, President; Canteen Committee; Ramsdell Scientific Society; Class Party Committee (2); 2nd Team Basketball (1, 3); Y. W. C. A., Secretary (2); Vice-President (3), Cabinet (4).

Evelyn—7 feet 6 inches, more or less, of friendliness, generosity and good nature. She is ready for anything. When? Now or anytime. Where? Here or elsewhere. There isn't a better all 'round sport in the class. Whether it's a question of running a house party, a camp supper, or the canteen,—when it comes to cooking or efficient management, everyone calls for Evelyn. Why is it that we always trot out Evelyn when there's a difficult permission to be obtained or a ticklish job to be done? Because of her tact, her marvelous propensity for making you perfectly willing to do something that you are, down underneath, dead sure you don't want to do. An earnest worker in Y. W. C. A., Evelyn is nearer the hearts of underclass girls than most members of 1919 have the good fortune to be. Happy-go-lucky, always dependable, she's liked wherever she goes; and we expect her advanced math will be needed to calculate the friends she will make in the future.

Lina Cordelia Weeks, A.B.

Born Aug. 9, 1887, Mexico, Me.; Mexico High School; Farmington Normal; Y. W. C. A.; U. A. C. C.; Chairman Program Committee; Le Petit Salon; Head of Debating Department; Seniority; History Assistant (4).

Lina wasn't quite sure, when she came to us as a Sophomore after all her experience in teaching whether we were too young and foolish for her or not. She finally decided, however, that we aren't really as childish as we look; so she has accepted us whole heartedly. We wonder sometimes what the trouble is with Prof. Gould's clocks; they usually send her up to lunch anywhere from three to eight minutes late. We'll forgive her for that, tho, since she has redeemed herself in so many other directions. When we are tempted to think that life is a stale and monotonous affair, we get Lina to tell us her latest funny experience. If there is anything we want to know about, from botany to cooking, we just ask Lina; she knows. And if ever in the course of our lives we entertained the idea that the girls who don't live in the dorm miss half the fun of coming to college, we can get extensive information on that subject by consulting Lina. That much amused smile of hers breaks out at once as she begins; "Well, it seems to me—".

Irene Ruth Wells, A.B.

Born Manset, Maine, May 30, 1898; Brooklin High School, 1915; Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Enkuklios (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous (1); U. A. C. C. (2, 3); Seniority (4); Le Petit Salon (4); Athletic Association (1, 2, 3, 4); Hockey (3, 4); First Volleyball (2, 3); Second Volleyball (1); Basketball, Second, (1, 3); Track (2); Numerals; B.W.

"Tweet, tweet, tweet!" A field glass is raised toward the high branches of an overhanging tree. It's Irene who is the supreme lover of birds among us. It is she, also, who loves to measure vast distances and spend her waking hours (which may extend beyond the set time for retiring) in star-gazing. This occupies her time when she is not engaged in trying to see something exciting; for there is no one who likes a good time more than Irene, and her fudge parties and spreads are some of the many pleasant things which will bring back the happiest memories.

Mary Phillips Williamson, A.B.

Born May 24, 1896, Green Island, N. Y.; Troy High School; Entre Nous; U. A. C. C.; Enkuklios; Y. W. C. A.; Vice-President, Le Petit Salon (3); Member Class Executive Board (1); Baseball (2, 3); Tennis (1, 2, 3); Numerals.

Doesn't her picture show the twinkle in her eyes? Is it the twinkle that gets 'em, Mary? If not, it's an indefinable something that makes Mary decidedly popular with both sides of the campus. Pluck, spunk, perseverance, she has plenty of them all. An absolute stranger to worry. Mary never lets her studies interfere with her regular college course, but she gets her work done just the same. She is optimism personified, cheerful in spite of difficulties that would down most of us. Mary is one of the best housekeepers in Rand Hall. Step into her room at any time of day, and you will always find it and herself immaculate. If Mary chose to speak, which she doesn't often, we think she could tell of more good times than any other one of us.

IZETTA RAY WOLFE, A.B.

"Ray"

Born Aug. 19, 1893, Gloucester, Mass.; Entre Nous; President, U. A. C. C. (3); Enkuklios; Vice-President, Phil-Hellenic (3); Head of Literary Dept. (1, 2); Seniority; President, Massachusetts Club (4); Y. W. C. A.; Glee Club (4); Choir (4); Le Petit Salon (4).

Dumpty—dumpty—dumpty—dump! No, it isn't an army coming down the corridor, altho it does sound that way; it's Ray, hurrying back to her room to do her history lesson. She's going to have a written to-morrow; and Jiminy Whiskers she hasn't any time at all to prepare for it! You can make her forget about that, tho, if you know how; just take her in those place cards you want designed. Ray has all sorts of ideas about things like that, and she's always ready to stop what ever she's doing and pull out that paint box of hers. She is going to be an interior decorator; or at least she ought to be; that dexterity of hers, which reduces the complex art of trimming hats to a mere pastime, and her enthusiasm for everything beautiful ought to carry her far.

Won't that look well in the New York Times?

LILLIAN KATHERINA WOODBURY, A.B.

"Cae"

Born December 16, 1896, Waterville, Me.; Pennell Institute, Gray, Me.; Entre Nous; Seniority; Enkuklios Board (4); Y. W. C. A., Finance Committee (4); Spofford Club (2, 3, 4); Vice-President (4); Sophomore Prize Debate; Hockey (2, 3, 4), Captain (4); Numerals; Assistant in English (4); Sophomore Prize Speaking; Junior Exhibiton; Greek Play; Commencement Honor.

She insisted that it be spelled "C-a-e", though we warned her that no one would ever know it is pronounced "K". Quiet? Well, we thot so until she came into the dormitory this last year. While the rest of us were playing tennis and making fudge, Cae has been putting herself through college,—and keeping mighty still about it. When essays, written lessons, lab. periods, history assignments, and holes in our stockings combine to make the rest of us tear our hair, Cae sails right through all her tasks, and in the process maintains her serenity and her firm conviction that folks and things are just the best ever. This serenity isn't of the jelly-fish variety either; just get into an argument with her and see how you come out in trying to make her change her opinion. To a girl like Cae, there is no such thing as discouragement; but if that first, rather dreaded year of teaching should bring anything resembling it, her sunny philosophy of life is certain to carry her through.

ERNESTINE BARKER WRIGHT, A.B.

Born August 26, 1898, Gardiner, Me.; Gardiner High School, 1915; Y. W. C. A., (1, 2, 3, 4); Entre Nous; Enkuklios; U. A. C. C.; Choir (4); Glee Club (4); Volleyball (1, 2).

"If to her share some human errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all."

It's difficult to convey any kind of a correct impression of "Stine" by such an indirect method as this. We think you'll agree with us that the most characteristic things wouldn't look nice on paper—not that they won't stand the light, but simply that they must be viewed in their proper setting, and from the correct stand point. Of course, just to fill up space, we might say the things we already know; that she's always a good sport—none better, we claim that she's a corking little nurse, that she has an awfully good line (or maybe it's a cable!) that gets her by with the profs; that she's always ready to do anything at anytime—which reminds us that time is her greatest commodity; that she is decidedly pretty to look at, and because of her love of fun, and quick wit, is an addition to any crowd; and in spite of the fact that she's still very young, her experience with men has been wide and diversified!

"I climb the hill: from end to end
Of all the landscape underneath,
I find no place that does not breathe
Some gracious memory of my friend."
—Tennyson

Clifford Roland Cobb.

Born Pownal, Maine, January 12, 1898; Mechanic Falls High School, 1915; Military Science Club (2, 3); Class Football (3); Y. M. C. A.; Died Poland, Maine, January 8, 1919.

The stalwart and robust frame of "Ty Cobb" will always be remembered by his classmates. His laugh and genial good nature brightened many a day for us. He was one of the few who could take a joke and not retaliate in kind. "Ty" allowed the amateur barber to practise on him and after the operation was complete he continued to grin.

Last fall the S. A. T. C. section at the college claimed him as a soldier. He was made a corporal and did excellent work. In December he was discharged and proceeded to his home in Poland. He contracted influenza which later changed to pneumonia and on the afternoon of January 8, 1919, this dreadful disease claimed another true Bates man.

Mahlon Russell Gerrish.

Born Brownville, Me., July 13, 1896; Skowhegan High School, 1914; College Choir; Cercle Francais; Y. M. C. A.

Mahlon was with us only a little less than a year but during that time he made some firm and true friends. He was always ready with a helping hand and kind word, and never too busy to give some one help in math. He made the choir in his Freshman fall, was a very good musician and substituted many times in the absence of the usual organist at Chapel exercises. Mahlon was a good student, an earnest and faithful worker, and deserving of all the more credit because he was laboring under adversities. He had been suffering from diabetes for two years, but never a word of complaint did he utter. Just before Easter the intensity of the disease suddenly increased and he left for his home in Skowhegan. In three days news of his death on April 22, 1916, was received and his many friends mourned the loss of a loyal classmate and true Bates man.

Wendell Algernon Harmon

Born February 22, 1897; Mechanic Falls High School, 1913; Class Track (1, 2, 3); Football, Manager (3); Politics Club (3); Military Science Club (3); Bates Publishing Association, President (3); Class Secretary (3); Student Council (3); died October 3, 1918, at Camp Jackson.

From the day of his entrance in college, Wendell Harmon was popular with the members of the student body. In all around scholarly accomplishments he had few superiors. His business ability was recognized when he was chosen manager of our football team. Modest, retiring, yet capable of making a decision. Wendell will always be remembered. We all bemoan the loss of such a noble and purposeful life. He has erected for himself in the hearts of all who knew him a monument which cannot be erased by the passing of time. The lives of us all will be richer because of his acquaintance. We shall always be more determined to pursue a worthy course toward a noble end, when we remember the earnest and cheerful figure of Wendell Algernon Harmon.

Frederick Ray Shusler.

Born Tacoma, Washington; entered Bates in the fall of 1915; Class Baseball A; Y. M. C. A.; died April 8, 1916.

In the fall of our Freshman year Frederick Ray Schusler entered Bates College. He roamed outside of the dormitory for a short time and at first was not very well known. After going over to John Bertram Hall, he became one of the most popular men in the class. He was both an athlete and a scholar. His skill in handling a baseball was only equaled by his ability in the classroom.

"Fred" Shusler while here was never a strong young man, but he worked cheerfully under difficulties. In April 1918, after a short illness he died at the Maine Central Hospital and the class of 1919 suffered its first loss. Funeral services were held in the chapel and the whole college followed the body to the grave. Frederick Ray Shusler will always be remembered by his classmates as a faithful student and a man of character.

IRA WOODRUFF BLACK

1st Lieut. U. S. Infantry

Born April 8, 1891, Watertown, Conn.; Watertown High School, 1908; LL.B. 1913, University of Southern California, Los Angeles, Cal.; Practiced Law, 1913-1917; Inducted into Service Aug. 27, 1917; Commissioned 2nd Lieut. Inf. Camp, Presedio, Cal.; 91st Division Camp Lewis, Wash.; Training Detachment, U. of M., Adjutant; S. A. T. C. Bates College, Commandant and Acting Quartermaster; Now stationed with 2nd Battalion 36th Regiment, Cambridge, Mass.

"The gentleman polices his buttons, strokes his chin, takes the kink out of his neck, clears his throat and loudly proclaims "You have got to use common horse-sense". This is our K. O. We are proud to have served under him. Always on the level, considerate of his men, and never punishing except for infractions of the rules, he must always be respected by the soldiers of the local S. A. T. C. We must always remember the hours you put in just before demobolization. We cannot forget the results produced. Whatever your future occupation, you will always have the good wishes of Mr. Bates' army and navy.

PLIMPTON GUPTILL

2nd Lieut. U. S. Inf.

Born Topsham, Maine; Home Address, R. F. D. 2; Topsham, Maine; Bowdoin College, Junior; Delta Kappa Epsilon; Specializing in Mathematics and Chemistry; Plattsburg Students Army Training Camp, Commissioned 2nd Lieutenant, September 16, 1918; Bates S. A. T. C., Personnel Adjutant.

Behold, our personnel officer, the man suitably eulogized at the banquet. Yes, he signed us up and let us out. He insured us and disciplined us for cutting classes. He marched us to mess to the tune of "They were all out of step but—." On the level though, Lieutenant Guptill made a good end for our football team. Tall and rangy he did his best to defeat his Alma Mater. All his deficiencies we lay at the door of Bowdoin, his good points came from Bates. Providing the influenza epidemic is held in check, we expect to hear from Plimpton in the future.

William Arthur Carr

2nd Lieut. U. S. Inf.

Born Washington, D. C.; Home Address, 3212 Wisconsin Avenue, Washington, D. C.; Lehigh University, Junior Class; Specializing in Mechanical Engineering; Plattsburg Students' Army Training Camp, Commissioned 2nd Lieut. Sept. 16, 1918; Bates S. A. T. C., in charge of 1st Platoon.

Now you have met the most popular officer in Mr. Bates' Army. Red headed, full of pep, not afraid of a good time and you have "Lieutie" Carr. Nor did this officer have to depend upon his official capacity as mess officer for popularity. He was always just a college boy yet maintaining discipline and having the respect of his men at all times. He was always ready for a frolic. To drive away thoughts of home, he threw army custom in the scrap heap and ate his Thanksgiving dinner with seven privates. He was not adverse to donning an apron and doing K. P. when visiting our fair co-eds. Our only regret is that Lieutenant Wm. Arthur Carr is not a Bates man.

Clinton Jones Daggett

2nd Lieut. U. S. Inf.

Born Albany, N. Y.; Home Address, 400 Western Avenue, Albany, N. Y.; M. A. C., Junior Class, Specializing in Agriculture; Kappa Sigma; Plattsburg Students' Army Training Camp, Commissioned 2nd Lieut. Sept 16, 1918; Assigned Sept. 27, 1918, Bates S. A. T. C.; in charge of 3rd Platoon.

This is the social lion of our board of strategy. He could trod the light fantistic. Yes, and he could ride in a limousine when the water-boy was confined to the post. As athletic director Lieut. Daggett had ample opportunity to get close to the men. He worked hard for our football team. If anyone happened to be under the weather, Lieut. Daggett was the first man around. Without hesitation, without trepidation with stern set countenance and fixed determination he administered the affairs of our medical department. As a drill master he held his own. A winning smile, personality, and a willingness to help, made Clinton Jones Daggett a favorite with the men.

MARSHALL MAIRNE FULTON

2nd Lieut. U. S. Inf.

Born, Keokuk, Iowa; Home Address, 712 High Street, Keokuk, Iowa; Brown University, Junior Class; Specializing in Biology and Chemistry; Alpha Delta Phi; Plattsburg Students' Army Training Camp, Commissioned 2nd Lieut. September 16, 1918; Assigned September 27, 1918, Bates S. A. T. C.; In charge of 2nd Platoon.

This is the likeness of the most efficient officer in the Bates S. A. T. C. It made no difference whether on the drill field or in a swivel chair Lieutenant Fulton always excelled. He was a sticker for discipline yet in the last analysis he was always scrupulously fair. We did not like that stern attitude particularly well last fall but on sober thought we honor you for it. We regret that you are not here this beautiful spring weather to complete a course in co-education so well begun. No, we are not confined to the campus. When you tire of old Bruno, of Caswell Hall, and scenes of the college on the hill, let your thoughts wander back to "God's College" in the wilds of Maine.

ELTON OLNEY FEENEY

2nd Lieut. U. S. Inf.

Born Portland, Maine; Home Address, 181 Allan Avenue, Portland, Maine; Portland High School, 1918; University of Maine, Freshman; Sigma Chi; Students' Army Training Camp, Plattsburg; Commissioned 2nd Lieut. Inf., September 16, 1918; Camp Perry S. A. F. M.; Bates S. A. T. C.; Rifle and Bayonet Instructor.

You could see him any day limping across the drill field. He used to be our star half-back and he was a fighter from the minute the whistle blew. Future Bates' teams beware for Feeney has departed to take care of the old Maine cow. This individual carried the old fight with him in all his work. "Short Point! Jab! Ugh" and today you may be with me in Paradise. Lieutenant Feeney knew how to close his eyes. If he was sure it was a friendly game, "I did not see a thing, boys". We are sorry you could not see Bates, Lieutenant, but you are welcome in Parker Hall. We will try to use you right.

S. A. T. C.

IN COMPLIANCE with the provisions made by the government for the establishment of Student Army Training Corps, Bates became a military post last October. At an impressive ceremony attended by the Governor of the state and his staff, the Mayor of the city, and many others, one hundred sixty-eight men were sworn into the service. From that time on Lieutenant Black and his subordinates had complete control of the military and scholastic training of these men.

That great conflict which shook the whole world and threatened to blot out civilization had at last been brought to our very doors. Instead of the quiet calm of a New England college was substituted the stern decorum of army regulations. The space in front of old Parker Hall now became the line of formation of a military company. At 6 A.M. the warning notes of reveille started the miniature army in operation. A minimum of two hours drill, fifteen hours of class-room work, fatigue duties, a period of organized study every evening, and quarantine made the soldier's lot a hard one. But that training soon brought results and placed Bates first among the colleges of New England when the final rating was complete.

On November twenty-sixth specific instructions were received to disorganize and demobolize as rapidly as possible. By December eleventh everything was in readiness and the discharging of the men began. The men in the army were released first. The nineteen sailors in the naval section had to remain at the post until December seventeenth when they were placed on inactive duty. These men with one exception were all upperclassmen who had enlisted in the Naval Reserve Force and had been assigned to duty here.

Too much credit cannot be given the Commanding-Officer and the five lieutenants working under him for the splendid record of the unit. They were tireless in their effort to bring about the success which was finally theirs. The excellent health and sanitary conditions existing at the college was due to the efficient medical attendance of Dr. H. S. Sleeper of Lewiston. A high degree of co-operation between the faculty and officers was at all times maintained. This thorough understanding between the executive branches, the morale of the men, and the general good feeling between officers and soldiers brought about a success of which Bates men and women may always be proud.

Two months! And now we've got to go,—
Completed is our Army life.
We've never had a chance to show
What we could do in war's grim strife.

Two months, in which we've learned some things
No life but this could us have taught
We've ne'er heard how the bullet sings,
Nor blown a German into naught.

And now to dear old Bates let's toast,
We're proud to be here in her ranks
And of her pep and spirit boast,
To her we're glad to give our thanks.

We've six lieutenants here, each one
A prince of men; we hoped they'd stay,
And now their work is over, done,—
We cheer them as they march away.

They've used us white and on the square,
Real men, in every word and deed,
And as they leave 'tis only fair
To wish each one Farewell! God-speed!

And thru the years our thoughts will turn
To those months spent in days of yore,
All hail that noble little band,—
Bates Students' Army Training Corps.

S. A. T. C. Banquet

AS A FITTING close after three months of the hardest kind of work, the officers and men of the local S. A. T. C. met in the mess-hall to do justice to a chicken dinner. Not only our military men but practically every member of the faculty was present. The evening of December seventh must remain in Bates history as the day of the most successful banquet ever held in the institution. Too much credit cannot be given Mrs. Downes, her assistants, and the members of the committee for the success of the affair. They were untiring in their efforts to promote the venture.

After dinner Seaman Southey introduced our genial "Y" secretary, Harry Rowe, as toastmaster of the evening. With a few well told stories Mr. Rowe opened hostilities and established the proper background for such an occasion. Then he called upon Seaman Mayoh to answer to the toast "To Our Privates." For the next ten minutes the solid rocks of the army were crabbed, jollied, and laughed into subjection as is customary when Charlie speaks. Seaman Coates then responded to the toast "To Our Non-Comms." He very fittingly brought to light many of the deficiencies of our sergeants. Private Thibadeau in "To Our Officers" exposed the peculiarities of every member of the general staff. Lieutenant Fulton represented the officers of the unit and expressed their appreciation of Bates Men and their college. Professor Hartshorn was at his best when he responded to the toastmaster's introduction. He made a stirring appeal for college men to return and complete their work. He emphasized the need of college men in the reconstruction days to follow. Private Kirschbaum in a few well chosen words presented each of our officers with a loving cup, the gifts of the men of the unit. Lieutenant Black brought the affair to a close by thanking the men for the spirit in which they overcame difficulties and the high degree of co-operation which existed between officers and men. After singing the Alma Mater and giving several rounds of cheers, call to quarters was sounded and the men went to the barracks.

It is sincerely hoped that some such banquet will feature every college year in the future. Officers and faculty were well pleased both with the quality of the speaking and the general plan of the evening. May the men of 1918 see that the custom is continued.

With enthusiasm the Red Cross auxiliary renewed its work at Bates in the fall. Departments of knitting, sewing, and home service were formed. Each member pledged a certain amount of time to be devoted each week to whatever branch she might choose. Since the Christmas recess there has been no work for this organization, but each girl will remember gladly her share in the Bates Red Cross.

Student Council

Officers

President, Cecil T. Holmes, '19

Vice-President, Philip Talbot, '19

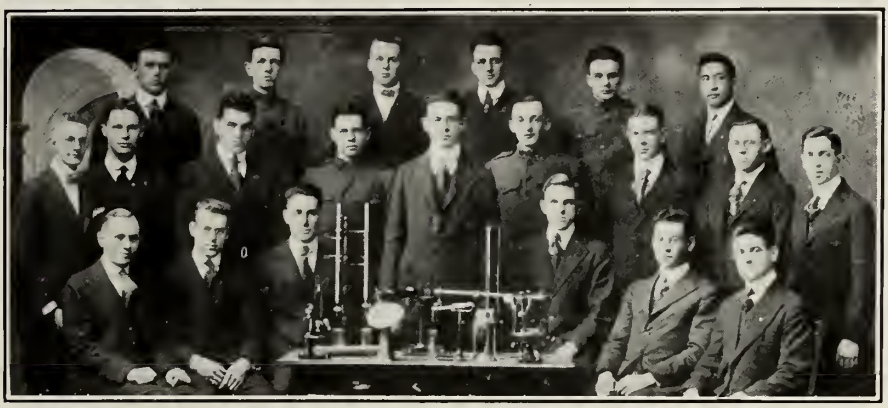
Secretary, Stanton Woodman, '20

BATES is known thruout the eastern part of the United States as a democratic college. The student body govern themselves largely thru an elected Student Council. This Council is composed of four seniors, three juniors, two sophomores, and one freshman—all representative men elected by the students of the college.

The Student Council has as its functions: the securing of better relations between the faculty and the students, promoting the best interests of the college, and improving the general conditions of the student life. During recent years the Council has played an increasingly greater part in the life of the college and this should increase just as fast as the members of the council show themselves capable and worthy of the confidence placed in them by the faculty and students. The Council at present has charge of the relations between the two lower classes. This year the Student Council has attempted to work out a plan so that rivalry and good fellowship may be promoted between the two lower classes without any bitterness or strained relations.

This year the work of the Student Council was badly broken into by the S. A. T. C. and no meetings were held during the first twelve weeks of the college year.

In the future the usefulness of the Council will depend largely upon the support given it by the students.



Jordan Scientific Society

Officers

President, Edwin W. Adams, '19
Secretary, Philip Talbot, '19
Executive Committee, Sanford Swasey, C. Earl Packard

THE JORDAN Scientific Society was founded in 1910 to fill a long felt want for scientific activity outside the class room. At that time it was felt that it would be better to have a single strong scientific society rather than four or five small, weak societies representing each of the science departments. Membership of the Jordan Scientific Society is limited to five juniors and thirteen seniors recommended by the heads of the Science Departments. Meetings are held twice a month at which the members present original papers on some phase of science in which they are interested. After the papers, discussions are held and new apparatus is occasionally explained at the meetings.

This year the Society has been fortunate in securing moving pictures illustrating some of the prineipal industries. These have included films showing the "By-Product Coke Oven", "Fixation of Atmospheric Nitrogen by the Cyananide Process," "Paper Industry," "Refining of Sugar," "Use of the X-Ray," "Mining of Asbestos," "Preparation and Use of Vaccines in the Prevention of Disease." Dr. H. E. Williams, Research Chemist with the S. D. Warren Paper Co., gave an address before the Society on some of the work which he has carried out on "Black Liquor" waste.

The annual exhibit of work being done in the different science departments was held on March twentieth and twenty-first. Students from Sabattus, Gardiner, Lewiston, and Auburn High Schools attended the first night, and on the second night six or seven hundred business men, students, faculty, and friends of the college saw the exhibits. This exhibit was by far the best ever staged in this state by any college or scientific society.

Before the close of the year several local industries will be visited and a trip taken to some out of town industrial plant. The Jordan Scientific Society has the distinction of being the only men's club which held meetings during the S. A. T. C. period. Dr. Jordan, for whom the Society is named, has aided the Society generously.

Politics Club

Officers

President, Charles P. Mayoh, '19

Vice-President, Stephen P. Gould, '19

Secretary, Fred Holmes

Treasurer, Lincoln Aikins, '19

IN 1912, thru the efforts of Professor Gould, the Politics Club was formed to study public affairs, to promote an active and intelligent interest in the political and economic problems of the present, and to present an opportunity for their discussion.

The membership is restricted to twenty men from the two upper classes, whose election is recommended by the Departments of History, Economics, and Argumentation.

Meetings are held every other Wednesday, papers are presented by members on some of the live topics of the day, and the meetings close with a discussion of current events.

No meetings were held the first term thru the interference of the S. A. T. C.

Cercle Francais

Officers

President, Clarence Elwell, '19

Vice-President, Ralph Burns, '20

Secretary, David Y. Alkazin, '19

THE CERCLE Francais was organized largely thru the efforts of Professor Hertell, head of the French Department. From the start he has been a constant attendant at the meetings and to his interest and enthusiasm, the success of the Cercle is largely due.

Meetings are held weekly during the college year. These are of about an hour's duration, and are conducted in French. These meetings are not only instructive in teaching the French language but also an effort is made to give the members a better understanding of the life and customs of the French and of the relations of France with the United States and other nations.

Membership is limited to the men of the sophomore, junior and senior classes who are taking work in advanced French or who are intensely interested in the French people. These men are chosen upon recommendation of the Professor of French.

Military Science

Officers

President, Raymond W. Blaisdell, '19

Vice-President, Carl Belmore, '21

Secretary-Treasurer, Aubrey Snowe, '19

In 1914, thru the efforts of Dr. Tubbs, the old Polymnian Society was reorganized into the Present Military Science Club. Any student in the three upper classes may apply for admission. The Club at present consists of ten seniors, ten juniors, and five sophomores.

Dr. Tubbs speaks at every other meeting about some military phase. This winter special attention has been paid to the battles of the Civil War and the strategy of the leaders. Members present papers and discussions are held on military principles, battles, and the whole campaign.

Thru the kindness of Dr. Tubbs the club has a library of up-to-date material concerning warfare in all its phases.

The Phil-Hellenic Club

Officers

President, Clinton Drury, '19

Vice-President, Marion Sanders, '20

Secretary-Treasurer, Mildred Widber, '21

SINCE its organization in 1916 "Greek Club" has been one of the most popular societies at Bates. Not only has Phil-Hellenic promoted interest in the literature and customs of old Greece, but it has aided in creating a deep sympathy with the Greece of today. At an early meeting of the year fifteen new members joined the society, forming a membership of thirty. Tableaux, reading from Greek Classics, talks on Modern Greece, and the singing of Greek songs have furnished enjoyable programs. The help of Professor and Mrs. Chase, and Miss Marr has been truly appreciated.

In February the Greeks of Lewiston and Auburn gave a reception to the members of the Phil-Hellenic Club. A program of music and speaking, both in English and Greek, was followed by the serving of genuinely Greek refreshments. The club was presented with a beautiful silk flag of Greece which, for many years, will serve as an incentive for the club's activity, and to strengthen the bond of friendship with our Greek friends.

Enkuklios

President, Vida Stevens, '19

Vice-President, Rachel Ripley, '20

Secretary, Crete Carll, '21

Treasurer, Lillian Tash, '19

Chairman Executive Board, Helen Tracy, '19

DID YOU attend the military social in Rand Hall Gymnasium last fall? Did you support the honor of your camp in the military drill? Did you laugh at the entertainment given in the "hostess house?" And what about the Valentine reception? Of course, you were there! Then didn't you have a jolly time at that camp supper down by the river?

Have you stopped to think that Enkuklios is responsible for those good times—Enkuklios, a society for good times for all of the girls all of the time, and for all of the boys part of the time.

President's Council

IN 1917 the President's Council was organized. It is a meeting of the Dean of Women and the heads of the various girls' organizations for the purpose of discussing general problems, and of assigning to each society its own distinctive work. President's Council has proved valuable in preventing conflicts and overlapping, and in presenting to each organization the aims of the other college activities.

Seniority

Officers

President, Vera Milliken, '19

Vice-President, Elinor Hayes, '19

Secretary-Treasurer, Louise Sargeant, '20

SENIORITY, founded in 1914, is composed of those Seniors who have gained the rank of A or B in the college English courses. A limited number of Juniors are chosen as members each year.

During the fall of 1918 Seniority combined with Red Cross, frequently furnishing a literary program at the Thursday night meetings. Since the need for Red Cross work has lessened, Seniority meets twice a month as an informal gathering. Sometimes the girls may be found cosily sewing in a corner of Fiske Room while one of their members reads some book of present day interest, again you may see them enjoying an evening at the home of one of our faculty ladies; and once two of our boys back from the service told of their experiences to a very appreciative group of seniors.

Seniority held one open meeting at which Professor Gould gave an intensely interesting and instructive talk on the Europe of today.

U. A. C. C.

Officers

President, Evelyn Arey, '20

Vice-President, Florence Hodgdon, '21

Secretary-Treasurer, Julia Barron, '21

Chairman Executive Committee, Edna Gadd, '20

In 1914 U. A. C. C. was organized as a literary society for all Sophomores and those Juniors not included in Seniority. Following the example of Seniority U. A. C. C. combined with Red Cross during the fall of 1918. During the winter and spring informal meetings devoted to the study of current events and literature have been held.

Le Petit Salon

Officers

President, Gladys Hartshorne, '19

Vice-President, Marion Sanders, '20

Secretary, Anne May Chappell, '19

Treasurer, Josie E. Lamson, '20

"LE PETIT Salon" was formed in 1917 for young women especially interested in the study of French. The meetings are conducted entirely in that language.

The programme, for the most part literary, sometimes takes the form of a social gathering. A special effort has been made this year to obtain speakers who are not members of the society—people who can bring a definite message which will inspire "La Petit Salon" with a new enthusiasm, not only for the French language, but for the people and country to whom the language belongs. It is hoped that "French Club" will rapidly grow to fill the prominent place which it should hold in the college.

Spofford Club

Officers

President, Clinton A. Drury

Vice-President, Miss Catherine Woodbury

Secretary, Miss Marion Lewis

IN 1910 the Club was organized and named in memory of the late Professor A. K. Spofford, and this club was patterned largely after his ideals. The object of the Club is to teach and develop ability along literary lines. This is accomplished by free criticism and discussion of the members of each other's work. Meetings are held weekly at which the members present original sketches, stories, essays, poems, and occasionally a drama.

This year Dr. Hartshorn gave an excellent address on "Realism in Literature."

Students of the three upper classes are eligible for membership, and members are elected upon the presentation of a piece of original work which satisfies the standards of the Club. Membership is restricted to fifteen students. Members of the English Departments are considered honorary members.

This year the Club will present a play by one of its members before the whole college. It had been hoped that Spofford Club could issue this year a booklet showing the attractive side of college life to supplement the regular college catalogue, at least if it is not issued this year next year's Spofford Club will undoubtedly issue it.

Professor Baird has been an interested and enthusiastic member who has done much to promote the welfare of Spofford Club.

Y. W. C. A.

Annual Member, Gladys Logan, '20

ASK A GROUP of Bates girls to tell you what organization to them has meant the most, what has yielded the deepest, most far-reaching influence on their college lives and the almost unanimous answer will be the Y. W. C. A.

The weekly religious meetings, the Bible Study and Mission Classes, the Community Service work, and even the social good times have this year meant even more than in preceding years.

In the United War Drive of last fall the Bates Girls were proud to "go over the top."

The Y. W. C. A. conference composed of delegates from the Maine Colleges and Normal Schools met here in April.

The ideal of world-citizenship and world-service has been placed before the girls as a guiding principle for the year.

Y. M. C. A.

Secretary, Donald K. Woodard, '21
General Secretary and Treasurer, Harry W. Rowe, '12

Members of Y. M. C. A. Cabinet for 1918-19:
The Officers of the Association
The Departmental Chairmen:
Administration, Olin B. Tracy, '20
Religious Education, Charles E. Packard, '19
Campus Service, Cecil T. Holmes, '19
Community Service, Lincoln J. Aikins, '19

THE BATES College Y. M. C. A. has existed since 1888, but it is safe to say that never before in the history of the College has the Y. M. C. A. exerted as great an influence as during the present year. While war conditions and S. A. T. C. upset other college activities, the Y. M. C. A. was quick to grasp this opportunity to be of service to the men of Bates. Thru the influence of Secretary Rowe and the College authorities the National War Work Council was led to deal most generously with Bates. The first floor of Roger Williams Hall was entirely given over by the College for a "Y Hut," during the days of S. A. T. C.; this arrangement has continued, and next year the activities will be on an even larger scale at the new Bates Union, Chase Hall. Pool and billiard tables, tables for various games, a room for reading and writing, a Victrola, and moving pictures once or twice a week are some of the new improvements which the Y. M. C. A. has offered to make the college life more attractive to the men. Classes have been arranged at several Lewiston Churches for the discussion of reconstruction problems. With the aid of the Y. W. C. A. and faculty the Y. M. C. A. put Bates over the top by a thousand dollars in the United War Work Drive. Bates contribution to this work was thirty-five hundred dollars. While the Y. M. C. A. program this year has been very different from past years, the constructive policy inaugurated should continue during the reconstruction days to come. By numerous social functions the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. have improved social conditions to a marked degree.

Mount Hermon Club

Officers

President, Ernest A. McKenzie

Vice-President, Charles L. Stevens

Secretary-Treasurer, Gerald H. Buker

THE BATES-HERMON Club was organized during the second term of this year with a membership of eight. The membership is composed of Mount Hermon men in attendance at Bates. In years past there have been several men from this preparatory school at Bates, but not until this year has there been sufficient number to form a Bates-Hermon Club.

The purpose of the club as set forth by the constitution differs from most organizations at Bates. "The purpose of this Club shall be to promote fellowship among Mount Hermon men in college and to inform students at Mount Hermon of the various activities and of the opportunities for Mt. Hermon men at Bates."

The club has been meeting twice monthly and at the first meeting voted to send the Bates Student to the Mount Hermon Library. The club plans to keep in touch with the men at Mount Hermon by sending pictures of the campus, college bulletins and any other information regarding college activities besides keeping in touch with the men by personal correspondence.

By presenting to Mount Hermon men the opportunities for a college education at Bates the club hopes to secure more men from that school to enter this institution.

Macfarlane Club

Officers

President, Donald Woodard, '21

Secretary and Treasurer, Evelyn Arey, '20

Chairman Executive Committee, Doris Shapleigh, '19

AMONG the youngest of our Bates Societies and also, among the most promising is "Macfarlane Club" founded April 16, 1918. The active membership of the club is limited to twelve members, six men, and six women who show marked ability in music. Mr. Will C. Macfarlane, Municipal Organist of Portland, for whom the club is named is one of the five honorary members.

The organization is surely living up to its purpose of promoting musical culture at Bates. Vocal and instrumental selections, readings and talks on varied subjects of musical interest have furnished at semi-monthly meetings programs of more than usual interest and value.

The hospitality and helpfulness of the honorary members has been sincerely appreciated.

Here's to the continued success of "Macfarlane Club!"

Ramsdell Scientific Society

Officers

President, Carolyn Tardell, '19

Secretary, Mary Hodgdon, '19

Chairman Executive Committee, Marion DuBordieu, '19

FOR SEVERAL years the girls of Bates who are especially interested in science have wished an opportunity for promoting scientific study beyond the regular class-room work. On February 27, 1919, the "Ramsdell Scientific Society," named in honor of Professor Ramsdell, was organized with fourteen charter members. The basis of the selection of members is a recommendation for election by two scientific departments.

Two meetings of the society have been of particular value. At one Dr. Whitehorne gave a most instructive and entertaining talk upon "Photography," especially designed to help the amateur. At an open meeting Professor Ramsdell's discussion of the Fourth Dimension will be remembered as unusually clear and interesting.

If there is any truth in the old maxims concerning a good beginning "Ramsdell Scientific Society is sure to enjoy a brilliant future at Bates.

Ralph A. Burns
Carl E. Belmore

STUDENT management at Bates has been extended to another field during the past school year. After several years of financial failure, the management of our Commons was placed in the hands of a student committee. This body acting with Professor Gould, who was largely instrumental in influencing the faculty to try the experiment, has met with remarkable success. It has provided for the upkeep of the equipment, paid its bills, and will undoubtedly leave a surplus for another year.

Many changes have been made in the administration of our dining hall. A system has been provided which eliminates the expense of employing waiters. Every man now serves a two days' period on K. P. The men have readily taken hold of the idea. Mrs. Downes, an experienced buyer, has been placed in charge of the dining room. Students are employed wherever it is consistent with true economy. We sincerely hope that a work so well begun will be continued and solve once for all the Common's problem.

Other Clubs

Deutsche Gesellschaft

During this year Deutsche Gesellschaft has not been formally organized. However, the Senior German class spent a delightful evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Leonard. German games and a talk on German customs made the evening pass much more quickly than the guests wished.

New Hampshire Club

President, Evelyn Varney, '19

Vice-President, Edna Gadd, '20

Secretary-Treasurer, Florence Hodgdon, '21

Chairman of Executive Committee, Carolyn Tarbell, '19

Besides the regular business meetings of the year New Hampshire Club has held good time meetings; the initiation of Freshman girls, an open meeting for entertaining the men from New Hampshire, and a camp supper down by the river. All the members are very enthusiastic loyal supporters of the good old "Granite State."

Massachusetts Club

President, Izetta Wolfe, '19

Vice-President, Minerva Cutler, '21

Secretary-Treasurer, Marion Lewis, '19

To prove their loyalty to their home State the girls of Massachusetts have formed a club, which serves to strengthen friendships and to provide evenings of fun. Whether at camp suppers on the riverbank or at socials in the dormitory Massachusetts girls never fail to have a jolly time when together.

Entre Nous

This literary society, whose membership is composed of the girls of the Freshman class, has not been organized during the year 1918-19.

Phi Beta Kappa

Officers

President, George C. Chase, Bates '68

Secretary-Treasurer, Arthur N. Leonard, Brown '92

Chapter installed May 29, 1917.

BATES prizes as one of her greatest honors the installation of the Gamma Chapter of Maine of Phi Beta Kappa. Many of the noted alumni of the college are included in the membership.

In 1776 the fraternity was founded to stand for distinctive scholarship and integrity of character, and it has never failed to hold to its high standards.

Bates may choose as members not more than twelve and one-half per cent of the Senior class during the second semester of the Senior year. Since it is desired to keep the membership to a high standard it is probable that the number chosen will seldom exceed ten.

At Bates in selecting members for this fraternity not only scholarship and character during the college course, but, also, the prospects of an intellectually brilliant career are considered.

Musical Clubs

THAT the Girls' Musical Clubs have proved successful during this year people both in college, in town, and out of town will gladly agree.

The Mandolin Club has responded with willing enthusiasm to many and varied calls for a musical program. This club plans to end its season with a good time for its members. A sum of money is to be donated to the Silver Bay fund of the Y. W. C. A., and a sum is to be left in the treasury sufficient for purchasing music next fall.

The Glee and Mandolin Club, united in a most entertaining concert last February. The girls have practiced faithfully in spite of many handicaps. Their work has been appreciated for the musical clubs have come to hold a prominent place among our college activities.

The College Choir

THE COLLEGE Choir furnishes music for all chapel services and for the vesper services which are held frequently on Sunday afternoons during the year. It owes much of its success to the directorship of Mr. Goss. His musical ability and wonderful tact has produced remarkable results.

Although weakened by the loss of many 1918 men and women, the high standard of other years has been attained. A good portion of the members of the Choir come from the class of 1919. Their loss will be felt, yet we look for a continuation of the good work of the past.

The Bates Student

"HERE'S to the BATES STUDENT!" a toast that has been given by many classes. 1919 takes a particular pride in its success. Even though confronted with unusual conditions brought about by the war, the paper was issued weekly as has been the custom.

In 1917, the character of "THE STUDENT" was changed. It became a weekly newspaper with a monthly magazine supplement. It is managed by members of the junior class and represents the literary talent of the college.

During the term of the S. A. T. C., it became more or less of a military paper. The staff changed frequently. The work has been under two editors and was often carried on under difficulties. Several changes have been made, all of which operated to produce a better paper. So, "Here's to the BATES STUDENT." May it prosper and serve as a true expression of our college life.

Debating

DEBATING ranks as one of the major activities at Bates and always arouses great interest. A record of 35 victories in 46 debates speaks for itself. Bates has been victorious over such opponents as Queen's College of Canada, College of the City of New York, Harvard Seniors, Tufts, Clark, and Boston University.

This year Bates again debated Clark and Tufts in a triangular league. The question chosen was: "Resolved, That the United States should adopt a cabinet form of Government modelled after that of Great Britain." Both teams won unanimous decisions. The victory over Clark at Lewiston was especially gratifying after the defeats of recent years.

Charles P. Mayoh, '19, Charles M. Starbird, '21, and Robert B. Watts, '22, made up the team which defeated Clark. Edward H. Brewster, '19, Arthur F. Lucas, '20, and Benjamin E. Mays, '20, comprised the team which registered a victory over Tufts.

Men from the class of 1919 have played a large part in the success of our teams. None of her members have ever been on a losing team. 1919 has had one man on the varsity for three years, another for two years, and a third who made the team this year.

1919 Sophomore Prize Debates

THE SOPHOMORE Debates of 1919 were of an unusually high standard. The men debated on the question, "Resolved, That the United States should adopt a system of compulsory military service modeled after after that of Switzerland." The case and experience of Mr. Ames and Mr. Mayoh, two varsity debators, gave the decision to the affirmative team made up of Charles P. Mayoh, Raymond W. Blaisdell, and Mervin L. Ames. The negative was upheld by Edwin M. Purinton, Paul J. Tilton, and Clinton A. Drury. The individual prize went to Mervin L. Ames.

The young women discussed the question, "Resolved, That the United States Government should own and operate all interstate railroads, constitutionality conceded." After much deliberation the judges awarded the individual prize to Miss Christensen although the team prize went to the affirmative composed of Dorothy Haskell, Faith Fairfield, and Carrie Place. The negative was upheld by Marion Lewis, Eleanor Hayes, and Cecelia Christensen.

Freshman and Sophomore Prize Debates

AT THE TIME this article goes to press neither the Sophomore or Freshman Prize Debates have been held but teams have been picked and the debators are working zealously. The Sophomore teams will debate the question, "Resolved, That the various states of the United States should adopt a policy of compulsory health insurance." The affirmative team is composed of Marceline E. Menard, Karl R. Young, and Charles L. Stevens. The negative team consists of Gladys F. Hall, Loys A. Wiles, and Charles M. Starbird.

The men of the Freshman class will debate on the subject, "Resolved, That the various states should adopt the unicameral type of government." The affirmative will be upheld by Alosco M. Burgess, John William Ashton, and Raymond B. Buker. Dwight E. Libby, Roland Jay Carpenter, and Aaron C. Johnson will uphold the negative side of the argument.

Town Girls

THIS ORGANIZATION is unique. Its primary purpose according to its constitution is to promote a systematic campaign for spreading the teachings and ideals of Bates Women's College among the girls of Lewiston and Auburn. Meetings are held every day (Sundays excepted) either in the cars of the L. A. & W. or on the streets of our fair city. A healthy interest in the art of walking is taken by this active society. Banquets are held daily unless some of the dormitory girls get a mortgage on the viands.

An increased interest in the welfare of the men of the college has been manifested during the past year. Its effort to turn the tide of Bates men from the dance-halls of the twin cities to more uplifting channels has met with marked success. Social centres have been created in many of the doorways of Auburn.

May such an organization continue and prosper. We congratulate you on your voluntary submission to the rules of Rand Hall. We look for you to increase and multiply. We expect you to take a greater part in our social life.

AIR:—LOCH LOMOND

The years have been sweet since we first gathered here
In these halls and the campus so dear;
And the strong ties of friendship will hold us always true
To the mem'ry of the college we cheer.

REFRAIN

In the days that have passed and the days yet to be,
Comes a vision of life always clearer.
The glad joys of youth and the earnestness of work
Unite us in love ever dearer.

May the spirit of him who for Bates gave his all
Guide our lives to their noblest endeavor.
May our hearts' grateful love, our ideals and purpose high
Be an honor to his mem'ry forever.

REFRAIN

In the days that have passed and the days yet to be,
Comes a vision of life always clearer.
The glad joys of youth and the earnestness of work
Unite us in love ever dearer.

Though the years shall move on and we meet not again,
May we give to the world a rich treasure
Of the beauty and truth and the loyalty of Bates
That our college gave to us in full measure.

REFRAIN

Then here's to our college, our own Alma Mater,
And here's to the years that invite us,
And here's to our classmates, the friends of our hearts,—
May the spirit of '19 unite us.

Greek Play

Greek Play—Antigone

THERE was no question of whether or not there would be a Greek Play. The question was, "What play will be had?" Antigone, one of Sophocles best tragedies, was chosen.

Eteocles and Polynices, brothers to Ismene and Antigone, were killed with mutual stroke, both on the same day. Creon, the king allowed all burial honors to Eteocles and publicly proclaimed that no grave or other right be given to Polynices. Antigone, well aware of the death punishment, buried her brother. She was found, brought to the king and admitted all. Creon ordered her to be taken to a walled cell out of the city to die slowly. Haemon, Son of Creon, betrothed to Antigone, pleaded with his father to spare her. The king would not listen. Antigone hung herself in the cell, Haemon killed himself at Antigone's side and died with her in his arms. Euredice, mother of Haemon and wife of Creon also took her life. The tragedy ends with Creon suffering from the curse of his wife and son and begging to be killed by one of his servants.

The tragedy will be presented on the steps of Coram Library on the evening of Class Day. Lewis Campbell's version will be the one used. The cast will be as follows:

MEN'S ATHLETICS

Athletics in General

DURING the past three years, athletics at Bates have been nearly at a standstill. It is true that we have been represented by teams in all branches of sport, but the loss of some of our best athletes, due to enlistments has been keenly felt. Our athletic prowess has only been medioere. We have opened the various seasons with the best of prospects, only to have one after another of our men leave college to take up some form of War Work. Consequently our teams have been disorganized, and the fighting spirit of which Bates has always been so proud, has been lacking. But now is the time to revive that spirit, with the return of our athletes, Bates should be able to regain her former standing among the Maine colleges in athletics. Her plans for the future should be made with this in view.

One of the most essential needs, which, we regret to say is still unmet, is a new gymnasium, similar to the one Dartmouth now has, would be a great asset to the college. It would provide not only for physical exercise and drill but, with an indoor track and baseball cage, would also furnish a means for the winter training of our athletic teams. When the present plans materialize, and the new gym is erected, Bates will be one of the best athletically equipped institutions in the country.

SIDNEY PEET

Track Coach

During the early days of April of the present year, Bates was without the services of a track coach. After it had been decided to send a team to the Maine Intercollegiate Track meet the college secured Sidney Peet to coach the men. The new mentor had a world of experience at Andover where he spent fifteen years. Despite the fact that he had only a few veterans and but five weeks to prepare the men, the new coach made a respectable showing at Orono.

"Sid" Peet proved a great favorite among the men of the college. We all felt that he knew the game. He placed the future well being of the individual before the immediate task of securing points. He showed himself to be a fighter at the state meet when they coached a man in the 880. Better luck next time, coach. We hope that you will be able to return under more favorable conditions another year.

HENRY MERRILL

Baseball Coach

That is our baseball coach's full name. Unless you are going to put it on the record books call him "Hank".

When Coach Purry was taken from us, the college turned to Gardiner and along came Henry. No, conditions were not exactly the best. An unfortunate scrape had deprived us of some of our star baseball men. We did not actually expect success. "Hank" was evidently looking at the situation from a different angle.

At this writing, Harvard, Tufts, Boston College, and Rhode Island State College have fallen before his protegees. The team is now tied with the other colleges in the state series and while we never predict still, we are prepared for anything.

The coach mixes well with the men of the college and is very popular. He has done well with the material at hand. He has our hearty support and best wishes for the 1919 team.

Track

Captain, Charles A. Gregory
Manager, Ralph P. Coates
Coach, Sidney Peet

BATES was last represented by a track team in 1916. In that year the last Intercollegiate Meet was held, our interest in track has only been maintained by our indoor track meets and one dual cross-country run with Maine. Last year, Bates did not have a track coach, and not much interest was taken in this branch of sports, although Captain Gregory aroused enough enthusiasm to hold the annual Indoor Track Meet at City Hall.

The prospects for the coming season, however, are much brighter than they have been for some time. Bates is to be represented at the M. I. C. Meet at Orono this year, and although we do not hope for a win, we expect to make a good showing. We were extremely fortunate to secure the services of Sidney Peet, who has coached the Andover track teams for the past fifteen years, to look after our track candidates. With Captain Gregory and R. Buker in the long distance runs, Lawrence and Boober in the quarter-mile, Peterson in the hurdles, Adam in the shot-put, and McKinney in the dashes, Bates has a good nucleus for a track team.

Capt. Gregory

Interclass Track

INTERCLASS track competition has always been popular at Bates. Although there was no outdoor meet last fall, the winter indoor meet was held and run off with the usual spirit. The Class of 1919 won the championship this year after capturing a third place in our freshman year, and second places in our sophomore and junior years. The juniors won second place, 1921 third, and 1922 fourth place. Woodman was high point winner for the meet, while Maxim ran a close second to him for individual honors.

1919 has demonstrated their track abilities time and time again. At the fall meet during our freshman year, we easily won second place, the next year we again won second place, but during the last two years no such meet has been held.

Just as in every other sport, the class of 1919 is well represented in track. Maxim and Purinton can always be depended on to win their share of the points. Captain Gregory, who holds the college record for the two mile run, together with Powers have always held places on our relay teams. "Soc" Bryant should not be forgotten. He is the college ½ mile walk champion, and won first place in this event during his first three years in college. Other men who have scored points for us are Adam, in the shot-put and broad jump, Stillman, in the shot-put, Swasey, Stone, and Alkazin.

Baseball

Captain, Phillip J. Talbot
Manager, Raymond W. Blaisdell
Coach, Henry Merrill

Capt. Talbot

THE BASEBALL team, this year, suffered a great loss in the death of Coach Purington. After a year spent in France, as a Y. M. C. A. Secretary, he returned to college the last of February, and immediately took charge of the physical department of the college. After spending a couple of weeks with the baseball candidates in the cage, he was taken sick and died shortly afterwards. "Hank" Merrill, an old New England leaguer, was engaged to coach the team for the remainder of the season, and is working hard to develop a fast team.

Hazing, that old relic of barbarism, has again brought disaster to our athletics. A little fun, harmless at first, but which terminated in a bloody battle between the Sophomores and the Freshmen, deprived us of the services of a number of good athletes.

Despite these setbacks, our baseball season opened in an auspicious manner with a 9 to 7 win over Harvard, the first time that a Bates team has beaten Harvard since 1915. The four Maine colleges are now tied in the series for the championship. Bates has lost to Maine 1 to 4, and won from Colby 11 to 7.

The class of 1919 has five letter men playing this year. They are Captain Talbot, Maxim, Davidson, Elwell, and Stone. Among the other men of 1919 who have made their letter in baseball, but have since left college, are Purvere, Logan, and Harvey.

Football

Capt. Southey

THE opening of the college year found a great change in our college. A Student Army Training Corps was established here and owing to the unsettled conditions, no football coach has been engaged. The faculty committee on athletics was not in favor of financing a team, but was willing to lend the athletic equipment to the S. A. T. C. unit, provided a reliable person was placed in charge to look after it. Lieutenant Daggett was chosen as athletic director and with Adam, who had been elected captain at the close of the 1917 season, as coach, arrangements were quickly made for a schedule of four games.

Coach Adam

It was indeed a dreary outlook. Only four veterans of the 1917 team returned. These men were Adam, Southey, Talbot, and Deane. With these men as a nucleus, the team was rapidly rounded into shape. Just before the Maine game, Adam, feeling that the team represented the S. A. T. C. unit more than it did the college, held a meeting of the men, and Chas. Southey was elected captain of the Bates S. A. T. C. 1919 team. The season proved a disappointment and by no means justified the work of Coach Adam. Of the four games played, Bates did not win a single game. On October 25, University of Maine won at Orono by the score of 6 to 0. The following Saturday, we were again defeated by the Portland Naval Reserves, 13 to 0. On November 9, the team travelled to Dover, New Hampshire, to meet the New Hampshire State S. A. T. C. Bates clearly outplayed her adversary, only to lose again, 7 to 0. The final game of the season was played with Bowdoin on Garcelon Field on November 16. The two teams were about evenly matched, with Bates perhaps a shade the better, but nevertheless, Bowdoin won, 7 to 0.

1920 Hockey Team

1919 Hockey Team

Tennis

Captain, E. M. Purinton Manager, Stanton H. Woodman

Capt. Purinton

In TENNIS, Bates has always excelled all of the other Maine colleges. Bates teams have won the championship in both doubles and singles for the past three years, and the prospects are exceedingly bright for a fourth consecutive championship this year. This unique record can be largely attributed to the splendid work of the Purinton brothers; Arthur, who graduated in 1917, and Eddie, who is captain of the team this year. John Powers, who was captain Purinton's team-mate last year is still in college, and from all indications it looks as if Bates would win in the championship again this year.

By winning the championship last year, Bates obtained permanent possession of the championship cup in in both doubles and singles, which is awarded to the college that wins three consecutive championships. Besides the Maine Intercollegiate Meet, Bates was also represented in the New England Intercollegiate games on the Longwood courts. Although they did not win the championship, Bates won the semi-finals, and the team is to be sent to the same games again this year.

This year there are only two letter men in college, Captain Eddie Purinton and John Powers. Among the other men who will make a strong bid for places on the teams are Stanton Woodman, Donald Woodward, Charles Kirschbaum, and Oscar Lesieur.

Interclass Baseball

AT THE opening of the fall term of our Freshman year, the annual freshman-sophomore baseball game took place. Captain Purvere of the 1919 team had a large number of promising-looking candidates from which to choose his team, while the 1918 team was composed of several Varsity men together with other former prep school stars. The final score was 1918—5; 1919—3. Maxim hit well for the freshmen, while Purvere pitched a one-hit game, but was handicapped by the lack of a good battery mate. The playing of the sophomores was featured by the all-around work of Duncan, and the pitching of Davidson and Fowler.

In the fall of 1916, 1919 battled with 1920 for the baseball supremacy. Purvere left college at the end of our freshman year, but his place was well filled by Elwell, and the result of the game was never in doubt. 1919 won by the score of 8-5. Maxim, Elwell, and Stone played good ball for the sophomores, while Wiggin, Rice, and Trask did good work for the freshmen.

Hockey

HOCKEY has never been one of the major sports at Bates. It was introduced during the winter of 1916, at which time, Colby and Maine were also represented by college teams. On account of the war, the interest in hockey gradually diminished.

During the past winter Manager Freedman tried to arrange a schedule with various local and college teams but was unable to secure a single game. The rink was put in shape, and in order to keep up enthusiasm, a series of interclass games was arranged. The athletic council generously offered to award a cup to the winners of the series.

All of the games were closely contested, but the fight for the championship gradually narrowed down to the Juniors and Seniors. The Juniors finally won 3 to 1. The entire Senior team played a good game, while Capt. Burns, who had previously been elected varsity captain, and the Tracy brothers did the best work for the Juniors.

As a whole, the series proved very successful, and should be an annual event. No doubt, next year the competition will be better than ever. Even tho a man cannot make the varsity, he can try for his class team, and thus keep up interest which has been aroused this year.

Girls Athletics

IN SPITE of many drawbacks and much sickness, caused by the epidemic of influenza, the interest in athletics has not declined.

The work of the year started in with hockey, and surely it was a great relief to hit that ball about the field, working off the surplus energy which patrolling College Street could never dissipate. The weather for out door practices was not favorable to us and sometimes it seemed impossible to get the fifteen practices necessary to make a team. Nearly all the teams suffered by loss of some of their best players. When the final games were played, after a hard fight the Juniors won the championship from the Seniors. This was still more of a triumph for the Juniors because their class had suffered most from loss of players, and consequently was the smallest to pick from.

Because of the shortened college year we had no volleyball team.

The work in the gymnasium held its usual interest, and in spite of the crowded balcony and lack of floor space, there was a chance for a larger number of people to witness the gymnastic meet on April fifth. Little did we realize the size of the freshman class until we saw them completely filling the floor space of the gym for their floor drill in which they made a fine appearance. The spectacular apparatus work of the Sophomores, the wand drill by the Juniors, and the minuet danced by the Seniors were among the most interesting features of the meet. Here again the Juniors demonstrated their ability, and tho all the classes did creditably, the decision of the judges went to the Junior class.

During the winter the toboggans, snow shoes, and skiis were given their share of attention and were the means of assisting in many pleasant outings. The Freshman class in particular enjoyed a mid-day tramp to Windsor Springs and proved that tobogganing is great fun even under adverse circumstances.

When it came time for the basketball games all the energy which might have been put into volleyball was turned in the direction of basketball. Much promising material was found in the Freshman class, but in the final games the Sophomores proved themselves to be the College Champions. The games were fast, clean, and great sport, as anyone who took part in them would readily agree.

To cement the good spirit and afford a chance for retrospect and mutual admiration, a banquet was held in Cheney Hall dining room for the basketball girls on April 28. Much credit for the success of the banquet is due to Miss Niles, Miss Hammond, and the committee in charge, as well as to the girls who gave so much time to making menus and place cards, and to Mrs. Case who prepared the appetizing viands. After the largest appetites were with difficulty satisfied, the remainder of the evening was spent in toasts, cheers, and songs, until the vanity of the company was satisfied with a flashlight picture. All agreed that the banquet was the best idea yet, and it bids fair to become a popular event of each year.

With the coming of warm weather, tennis is the most popular sport, and the tennis courts, better than ever this year, are crowded at all times.

Baseball, too, is enthusiastically entered upon, and the star twirlers are seen on the mound practicing their most difficult curves. It is too soon to say what the outcome will be, but we are sure of some fast, close games with many technical, complicated plays.

This year there is an unusually great interest in track, and we may expect to see records broken.

It is impossible to tell in so few words all the phases of the Girls' Athletics and of all the good times they have. No account could be complete without some mention of the Athletic Board house party held last spring. The members of the old and new Boards camped at Taylor Pond for the week end, and will they ever forget the fun they had? No; nor the clams nor the strawberries.

In our director, Miss Niles, for whom our love and respect ever increases as we know her better, we have one always interested in any new, progressive idea, and one who is always ready to further any plan which is for the good of the girls.

Many and varied are the activities in which we have engaged in the past year. Many people still take our contests as jokes, but we hope that our increasing earnestness will convince them of the important part which athletics take in the lives of Bates girls.

Absolute Justice Has Been Administered

We, the members of the class of 1919, in order to quiet our Consciences, establish Justice, interfere with Domestic Tranquility, and secure the Blessings of Self-inflicted Inquisition to ourselves and to—to ourselves, do publish to the civilized world, including Scandinavia, this collection of facts and—facts.

ARTICLE I.

Section 1. Ed Adams wins the cup awarded to the tallest man in the class. At no time during the contest was Mr. Adams even seriously threatened, although Peterson's followers managed to poll twenty-five votes during the latter part of the campaign. On the other side of College Street, Evelyn had absolutely no opposition. Even as Saul, the son of Kish, she stands from her shoulders and upward higher than any of the people.

Section 2. Shorty and Dot are the champion sawed-offs. No one else received even honorable mention.

Section 3. We haven't any really fat ones in the class, but Dyke wins the decision among the men. He swears, though that it really isn't fat at all but good solid muscle, and insists that Hippo should receive some recognition. Sarah J. wins, with Sarah R. a poor second.

ARTICLE II.

Section 1. Twenty-five per cent of the members of the class received some recognition of their right to the honor of being the best looking one in the outfit. Raymond Blaisdell pulled down the big vote, but Stillman and Southey fought hard for second, and Bill Davidson did not pass unnoticed. Bill, however, as one voter remarked, should shave. Catherina Woodbury is the best looking girl, along with Vida and a dozen or so others, who did not poll quite so many votes. People seem to have their own ideas on that subject.

Section 2. For variety, splendor, and unexpectedness in raiment, John Mosher and Lillian Tash are unapproached. As candidate for dude, Mosher wins with a total of twenty-eight votes. Mister Mosher received one vote.

ARTICLE III.

Section 1. Phil Talbot and Anne May Jordan Chappell are the maximum athletes. Soldier Adam, however, has a bunch of backers, and the prowess of Carolyn Tarbell and Ida Millay on the baseball diamond apparently excited much admiration among the voting populace.

Section 2. It was more difficult to select representative Mexican Athletes. There were many more candidates for honors. In the final recount, however, Mary Louise and John Mosher were victorious over all opponents. The choice will no doubt be a popular one.

Section 3. Soc has made scientific walking what it is at Bates. It is nothing but justice, therefore, that he was the almost unanimous choice of his classmates as the fastest walker. This will probably do much to help him forget the galling defeat in his last contest in City Hall. The daily trip from Auburn has earned Barbara Marston the title among women.

Section 4. Eating, one of the more technical branches of athletics, is easy for John. He wins, hands down. In fact, Gregory says that it is a known fact that Powers is the champion victualer. Irene Wells receives much merited recognition among the women.

Section 5. Clinton Arthur is voted the absolute apostle of military dignity, but the size of the vote indicates that Marion Lewis would have been considerable of a soldier if she had had half a chance.

ARTICLE IV.

Section 1. Chronic dissatisfaction with the things of this life as they exist gives Heck a one vote lead over John Powers, his nearest rival, as the crab of the family, and that is somewhat of a recommendation for Heck, for John is almost as good at crabbing as he is at eating. Gladys Skelton gets a prize among the girls. I don't know why, and I don't dare to ask her.

Section 2. Pury is labelled as our most noticeable pessimist. Just why he should be considered as a spreader of gloom is more or less of a mystery, unless the explanation may be found in his own statement that "I don't know these 1919 women very well. Sorry." We are to understand that Ruth Severance is also given to looking on the dark, dreary, and depressing side of life.

Section 3. Charlie Thib, on the other hand, is very fond of getting hold of those dark clouds and ripping the lining right out of 'em. And when Charles and Hazel Hutchins, the two blue ribbon optimists, are in the same locality, dull care fades from view and the wicked cease from troubling.

Section 4. Ada Haskell and George Lawson have the best dispositions of any mortals in our midst. The voting on this question was confined to Rand Hall and the immediate vicinity. That's how George got by. If those who know me had had an opportunity of expressing themselves, I feel that the result might have been different.

ARTICLE V.

Section 1. For downright, upright, studious study, Fuji and Izetta Wolfe lead the field. Izetta studies all day, and Fuji studies all night, thus creating the twenty-four hours of studious atmosphere which marks the Bates campus. Lina Weeks, Clarence Gould, and Blanche Smith are also students.

Section 2. Ralph Coates never wears out the textbooks and Ernestine Wright has never been accused of burning midnight whale oil, for the purpose of studying. Alma Blaisdell, Charles Southey, Gladys Stetson, John Mosher, Aubrey Snowe, Clarence Gould, Scut Sampson, Mary Louise, and thirteen others are mentioned as candidates.

ARTICLE VI.

Section 1. Ernestine and Charles Southey share the honor of being extremely lazy. Twenty other individuals contended for the cup, but their attempts were feeble. Fuji voted for himself, but he was alone in his choice.

Section 2. Bill Lawrence, by his untiring attention to duty in the Bug Lab and its branch office, the Commons, won by one point over Fuji, as the most industrious man in the class. Cecelia Christensen gathered all the ballots for the industrious women.

ARTICLE VII.

Section 1. Soc once more walks into prominence as the class flirt, along with Alma Blaisdell. That is, Alma is also a class flirt. If Hazel Hutchins, Mary Williamson, and Ernestine Wright had pooled their votes, the total would have been sufficient to elect one of them over the victorious Miss Blaisdell. Which shows the necessity of team work in college activities.

Section 2. "What man is seen most frequently at Rand?" George received sixty-one of the seventy votes cast. "Alas! None!" was the significant comment on one questionaire.

Section 3. Powers, Southey, Wright, Skelton, the fussers of the class. I wanted to say something funny about this aggregation, but Charles said he wouldn't print it.

ARTICLE VIII.

Section 1. Helen Tracy and Phil Talbot are easily the most popular individuals in the class. The ancient but witty remark that "Speech is silver, but silence is golden," explains the situation beautifully. Larry Stillman is not forgotten, in spite of his long absence from the class.

Section 2. If the New England Telephone Company had gone out of business during our sojourn at Bates, Hippo Elwell and Cecelia Christensen would have been responsible. Ernestine Wright, Cecil Holmes, and Gladys Holmes have business calls from time to time.

ARTICLE IX.

Section 1. Music has won for Larry Stillman and Cecelia the title of "Most Talented". Drury, Thibadeau, and Gladys Holmes have talent of a quieter sort. There is a whole lot more talent in the class, but much of it is hidden under bushel or a bushel and a half.

Section 2. Hutchins, Holmes, and Gould are slated for literary fame. Several other persons are expected by a smaller number of voters, to attain like notoriety.

Section 4. Charles Mayoh is the orator by a positively overwhelming vote. Tracy leads the women, but she has to share honors with Cecelia and Evangeline. The rest of us don't get a look-in.

Section 5. What Ed Adams doesn't know about chemistry, and what Carolyn doesn't know about physics, isn't known by anyone except the faculty, and the faculty isn't paid enough to make it worth while to tell all it knows. Fuji is a pretty passable scientist, too by the way.

Section 6. Bill Davidson and Evangeline Lawson, by heroic efforts in Philosophy 6, have earned the decision, and will receive the medals for the best philosophers. Miss Lawson, however, was followed closely in the contest by Lina Weeks and Marion Lewis.

ARTICLE X.

Section 1. Charles Southey does more sleeping than any other man in the class. Charles admits it. Sara Reed and Eva Sherer are accused of like propensities, but they seem to be pretty much awake in the day time.

Section 2. "Who has the most time?" Hod Maxim and Ernestine Wright, no matter how much they have to do, can always find time for something more, or is it something else? That may be.

ARTICLE XI

Section 1. Alkazin is the best housekeeper on the campus side of the campus. That information may be valuable, and it is authentic, for Al has had a chance to prove his ability on a real apartment in the GYM. Gladys Skelton wins on the other side of the road. That information may be interesting, but not valuable, for us. "Oh, if I only knew!" wrote Shorty Tilton.

ARTICLE XII.

Section 1. Gene O'Donnell seldom goes to chapel, so they tell us, and Marion DuBourdieu's record in that respect is worse, but she thinks we don't know it, so we won't mention the fact. John Neville remarks that Heck hasn't got his name yet.

Section 2. Ralph Coates is the Night Owl. No, Alma Blaisdell is the Night Owl. Gregory, Lawson, and Drury, do so much of their studying in the small hours that they are favorably mentioned, in this connection.

ARTICLE XIII.

Section 1. Dyke and Dora are the headline buttinskis. Soc needn't be ashamed of his vote, either. Petty spite adds a dozen or so to the list of those who also ran.

Section 2. Dyke is again the popular choice for class egotist, but his election was by no means unanimous. Drury, and Holmes, and Powers and Coates, are all kindly remembered. Dot Haskell wins by a small majority over Mary Louise. Dot admits that Dot is the most interesting topic of conversation she can imagine.

Section 3. Maurice Small is taking a correspondence course with Bates College. No one else had a chance as class bluff, although half a dozen others received scattered votes. Mary Louise is again a top-notcher in this department.

Section 4. Bill Arata tried to give the faculty the most trouble, but he didn't have a ghost of a show with Gladys and George. All rivals for the distinction were simply overwhelmed by the ballots of an indignant electorate.

ARTICLE XIV.

Section 1. Soldier Adam is the noisiest individual in the class; and when he and Scut and Gene, the Kid, get together, you have all the necessary ingredients for a perfectly satisfactory and horrible football celebration. Marion Lewis, however, can make more noise in five minutes than this trio can produce in eleven hours, and Tracy and Ida Millay are almost as bad.

Section 2. Phil Talbot is very quiet. Phil, Clarence Gould and Fuji combined can neutralize the noise made by the entire collection in Section 1 of this Article. Arloene Farnham is the quietest girl in 1919, but that isn't saying a great deal.

ARTICLE XV.

Section 1. Cece Holmes and Helen Tracy are given credit for a great supply of wit, scintillating, scathing, skeptical or squelching, as occasion seems to require. Gladys Holmes is wont to give utterance to unexpected bits of satire from time to time, and George Lawson is also recognized for his frequent attempts at being funny.

Section 2. Charles Southey possesses the most winning, compelling, delightful, and altogether charming smile on the campus. Marion Dunnells' smile is one that never has been duplicated. It's contagious, even though you don't always know just what you are smiling at, but Marion won't agree that it is in any way superior and insists that Freda has them all trimmed. Vida Stevens, Margaret Jordan, and Hazel Hutchins have also charmed the voters.

ARTICLE XVI.

Section 1. Why we came to Bates. "By Special request"; "A Bowdoin man advised me not to"; "It runs in the family"; "Got on the wrong train"; "Shanghaied by a friend"; "Providence of God."

Section 2. Why we stayed here. "Also by special request"; "Consistently sitting in the back row;" "Consult the registrar;" "I have a fixed purpose in life;" "Strategy;" "They wouldn't let me leave;" "Faculty didn't have the heart to kick out a simple minded guy like myself."

Section 3. Our chief source of enjoyment while here. "Pestering Soc;" "Birdie;" "Showing 'em;" "Eating at home;" "The girls" (Vida said that); "The forbidden"; "Worrying;" "Dean's conference;" "Dancing in Rand Hall."

Section 4. The easiest course in college. "Physics;" "Oratory;" "MacDonald;" "Household Management;" "Greek Drama;" "Chemistry—(Joke);" "Prof. Gould's History. If you don't believe it, ask Powers."

Section 5. The hardest course in college. "Pom's Biology;" "Christian Ethics;" "History;" "Geology, literally."

Section 6. Our opinion of Co-education. "Fine!"; "Great!"; A hindrance to the well-being of any individual who has an honest purpose in life"; "I'm for it"; "I'm against it"; "As an educational policy, rotten; as an experience, delightful"; "O. K."; "Perfectly proper"; "Monotonous"; "It helped Watson and me"; "Darn good course!"; "Just right"; "Good for all concerned."

Section 7. Bates' Greatest Asset. "President Chase"; "Lieutenant Black";"Senior Girls";"Karl Woodcock";"Lake Andrews in the Moonlight"; "The 'Y' Hut"; "The hedge around Garcelon Field"; "Del Andrews"; "A pair of excellent bowling alleys"; "Being inherently bashful, I beg to be excused from answering."

Section 8. Bates' Greatest Need. "A new gym"; "A new constitution"; "New Bates songs"; "New ideas"; "A new Freshman English teacher"; "A new social system"; "A new Dean"; "Real student government"; "A substitute for the joke behind the gym"; "Equal suffrage"; "$1,000,000.00".

DONE in error by the Unanimous Consent of Charles Mayoh and myself, the Sixteenth day of May in the Year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred forty third. IN WITNESS whereof we have hereunto not dared to subscribe our names.

Supt. of Grounds and Buildings

Mr. :—

Dec. 4

I noticed your conduct in chapel this morning and understand very well that you were having fun and suppose that you consider that such fun is all right. I am writing this little note to express my disapproval of such an attitude, especially at this critical time.

You, occupying as you do, a place of a good deal of responsibility amoun your fellows cannot efford to let yourself go in the manner that you did especially at a chapel exercise. I shall look for a good deal better conduct from you in the future.

I should have waited for an opportunity to speak to you but I not sure of finding you without a good deal of searching and I think it important that you hear from me soon.

I should be glad to see you about this or any other matter any time that you can call at the office.

D. E. Andrews.

Brewster, '19—"Part my hair in the middle, barber."
Barber—"Sorry, parson, can't; there's an odd number."

Hoppie—"Well, yuh ain't got nothin' on me! I can go with any girl I please."
Thib—"That's all right, Hoppie; the trouble is you don't please many."

Cece—"What do you like about Kewpie."
George—"My Arms."

"The dean can give many a talk
On purpose and honor—oh! bosh!
But the old spring fever
Releases the lever
That holds back the vintage b'gosh!"

Willard, '21—"When I came to college my folks said if I didn't stop smoking cigars I would become feeble minded."
Auburn Jane—Well, why didn't you stop then."

Heard on the steps of Rand Hall:

She to He (who is endeavoring to live up to his reputation as a Mexican Athlete)—"Oh, I just love 'The Passing of Arthur'—don't you?"
He to She (looking wise)—"I am not acquainted with all the football players yet. Does he room in Parker."
(Answer and they shot Lincoln)

(Popular at Auburn Hall)—sing to the tune of "You're a Gol Durn Dangerous Girl."

"We are told of a faculty dance
We'd part with two bits
And throw twenty fits
To see old Foxy prance."

Extention Lectures By Bates Faculty

"Members of the Faculty are prepared to give lectures upon subjects in Science, Literature, Philosophy, History, Economics, Sociology, Pedagogy, and Art. Particulars can be learned by correspondence with the President, or the Secretary of the Faculty."

The following lectures were delivered for the most part under the provisions of the above statement. All seats were free; no collections were taken except on the last day to pay for lights. These talks were given at various hours of the day unless otherwise noted. If you were ever in doubt, you could hang around until something started. All addresses were supposed to inoculate culcher into those submitting regularly. Results were not necessarily guaranteed. Our notes at times were meager but we have done the best we would. If we have omitted any prize selections, we hope the next editor of "The Mirror" will make up our deficiencies. If we have misrepresented any of our lecturers in this series, let them submit silently and pray that the readers will recognize our weaknesses.

DETERMINISM OR HOW I GOT ON THE WRONG TRAIN

The audience having emphatically agreed that animals do not reason, the lecturer proceeds. All events are pre-ordained. Man has no choice. That you shall get a C in this course is already determined.

I was leaving a conference at Princeton. Two trains left the station within a few minutes; one for New York, the other for Philadelphia. As I walked into the station, the conductor began to shout, "A little pep there! All aboard Come on!" He was so insistent that I got on the train. After we had travelled about thirty miles, the conductor looked at my ticket and said, "Are you going to Philadelphia."

"No, New York," I replied.

"Well, you're on the wrong boat."

"You urged me so strong that I thought I would get on," retorted "Doc."

The conductor pulled the bell. The train stopped. "Doc" stepped off, took off his coat, and started on the long, long trail.

Well, yes, it was predetermined that I should get on the wrong train but next time I will spend a longer time in investigation.

(A word of explanation) You will not get on the wrong train unless you take too many of the courses. Do not fail to hear the talk on "The peculiarities of my dawg;" "Things you can do in the woods but not in Lewiston is another powerful ditty." We get something of value from these refrains.

THE LIFE OF LONGFELLOW BY PROFESSOR———

Good morning. I shall speak this morning for a few moments on the life of Longfellow. Before I speak to you on the life of Longellow, I shall call the roll. Miss Allen, Miss Cox, Miss Dennison, Mr. Drury—Is Mr. Drury here?

Mr. Drury is not here. Does anyone know where Mr. Drury is? Nobody knows where Mr. Drury is. Mr. Drury is absent. I mark absent Mr.—Here is Mr. Drury. Good morning, Drury. How is your courage this morning? Mr. Drury is now present.—Mr. Duffy, Mr. Hodgman, Miss Menard, Miss Merrill, Miss Widber, Miss Yeaton. I will now speak to you about the life of Longfellow. Before I speak to you on the life of Longfellow, I shall make an announcement. We were to have an examination on Monday of next week. It has recently been decided, however, that Monday of next week is to be a holiday. Therefore, there will be no classes. Therefore, there will be no examination. You will be glad to learn that the examination will be given tomorrow afternoon instead of on Monday afternoon. It is possible that I may not be able to be here even tomorrow afternoon. In that case, of course, my assistant will appear and he will give you the examination. Has anyone any question about the date of the examination? No one has any question. Then, if no one has any question, I shall speak to you for a few moments about the life of Longfellow.

UNEMPLOYMENT, THE ALLY OF DESPAIR

This lecture was delivered one day while I was absent but I was concerned directly in the events which brought many of us an extra hour's sleep.

The hour was 7.44. The scene was on the steps of Libbey Forum. The actors were students in Sociology (2). Away in the distance, swinging leisurely around the corner at Garcelon Field came the economist. He glanced at the bell on Hathorn Hall and increased the cadence. He changed his gait, grasped his old black bag firmly and started to trot against time. He got no further than the front of Parker Hall when the bell tolled a cut.

The responsibility now shifted on the shoulders of the class. To go out of the door was impossible for we were within range of his eagle eye. The "coeds" accepted the inevitable and started for the classroom. The men made for the cellar. The "prof" scented someone in the woodpile, so, he left the door wide open. Escape was now out of the question. "Necessity is the mother of invention" and we decided that more air was a requisite of our well-being. A window, some distance from the floor, furnished the only loophole. After several false alarms and as many hasty withdrawals, the window was forced open. One by one we dropped to the ground until ten of us had taken a legitimate cut.

Despite the absence of half the gathering, it became the instructor's duty to talk to the women and Carl Smith (Carl did not hear the bell.)

We will discuss unemployment as it affects poverty. I think that the authorities will bear me out when I say that 15% of our male adults are unemployed. (the girls look at Carl and smile knowingly). Someone disagreed with his estimate. A thirty-minute debate followed after which the dissenter made the professor admit that it varied from 15 to 16% according to the season. Suggestions were now in order to regulate unemployment. Lillian thought there should be no sweat shops. Mary Louise thought we should clean up the slums. The discussion became heated. The professor decided that it was time to call on Carl in order that the atmosphere might be cleared. Carl turned aside to tell us he was laughing with us not at us. Then he brought forward a scheme which would make unemployment a virtue. If the younger generation was educated to eat grass a vast expense would be avoided and poverty reduced to a minimum. The chapel bell prevented the doctor's going into detail. Next time we will take up "The Survey."—Excused.

MODERN WRITERS—A LECTURE

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains stood Under the Greenwood Tree Looking Backward over The Blazed Trail. Put Yourself in His Place. It was Middlemarch and he was Ninety-Three. The Light of the Western Stars cast the Long Shadow of The White Prophet on The Lonesome Trail. It was One Wonderful Night. He heard A Cry In The Wilderness. It was The Lone Wolf, one of The Haunters of the Silences. He must finish The Uphill Climb, Over the Pass, to The Cabin. There was No Other Way, for, After the Manner of Men, he sought A Place Beyond The Winds. But Once To Every Man comes The Crisis. The Heart of the Night Wind brot to The Man in Lonely Land The Silent Call. In The Witching Hour A Weaver of Dreams had gone to The Eternal City in The Land of Promise. The Master Key to The Isle of Life is In The Garden of Charity. The Seats of the Mighty lie beyond The Secret Garden, In A Far Country. Here The Just and the Unjust find The Life Everlasting. The Divine Fire burns in The Inner Shrine. At the World's End we sail from The Harbor of Doubt to The Port of Missing Men. In The Garden of Allah is the Happy Valley. In The Devil's Garden, The Hound of the Baskervilles guards The Bolted Door to The House of Bondage. The Fair God holds in The Hollow of her Hand Souls Resurgent. The Harvester is The Man of the Hour. The Turmoil is ended.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

A SCIENTIFIC EXPLANATION OF THE SPIT-BALL

You cannot imagine the accuracy with which my camera will record an object in motion. Some rainy day I intend to take pictures of the peculiar course of the shine ball. It is amazing to discover actions contrary to every law of physics. My observations led me one day to the baseball field to investigate the saliva ball. Now I was aware that it was not exactly sanitary to spit on a baseball and I could not justify ethically such a proceedure when it was expressly forbidden by our city ordinances in connection with our sidewalks. Nevertheless, the spirit of investigation must be satisfied.

My theory was that the sudden break in the course of the spheroid was caused by the uneven density of the atmosphere brought about by moisture penetrating the core of the solid through the two first stitches on the cover. Subsequent trials went to prove my calculation to be false; yet I still maintain that a kink in the arm of the man hurling the ball or his uneven disposition may have gone far towards producing variations. I soon found that regardless of how the sphere was held, it would be liable to break in some outlandish manner. It had to be held with two fingers on the wet spot. The two fingers forced the ball off the thumb, gave the desired axis of rotation, and brought about a sharp downward curve. Then I desired to observe the effect by reversing, and to my utter amazement as the pitcher threw the ball it made straight for the strikers head, hesitated for a fraction of a second; and would you believe it, the ball inscribed three complete circles about the batter's head and dropped into the waiting catcher's mitt. I firmly believe that this discovery will, in time, revolutionize our national pastime.

Next time—I will delve into the mysteries of the knuckle ball.

THE USUAL PLACE, THE USUAL DAY, THE USUAL HOUR

Will all the town girls please bear it in mind that to-day is the day for reporting church attendance. We should remember that we ought to be prompt in discharging all our responsibilities.

I have here a questionaire sent me by one of the teachers' agencies. Inasmuch as I have not time to have each of you answer it individually, and inasmuch as I have not pencils and paper enough to go round, I am going to read it to you. The first question is: "Is she dependable?" Within a year and a day, I have been asked to recommend so and so for such and such a position, and I was very sorry to be unable to answer that question about her in the affirmative. She did not appear at a meeting of U. A. C. C. one evening when she was supposed to take part in the program; therefore, since she was not scrupulous in attending to such matters here, I could not recommend her for a responsible position outside. Some of the other questions are: "Does she manicure her nails daily? Does she go around with three-days-old inkspots on her fingers? Does she black the heels of her shoes? Can you unqualifiedly recommend her table manners?" I wonder whether these are not things which we all ought to be thinking about. You see that there is really a commercial value to these important and desirable qualities of person and character.

There has lately been coming to me a deal of criticism from certain townspeople. I have been told by more than one person that Bates College girls are not considerate of other people when at a public lecture or concert. We turn our heads to whisper to our neighbors; we laugh and giggle; we make constant comments; and so we detract from the enjoyment of people near us. We ought to remember that we are representatives of the college; and that the whole college will be judged from the manners of a few of us.

Seniors excused.

DRUDGERY ON ENGULFED IN THE MIRE

The grounds-keeper scrapes his feet and comes out on the platform. He is a bit nervous as he faces his audience. He hesitates, bites his lip, and begins "I—I have been thinking quite a little of drudgery." A little irritation of the skin causes the speaker to rub the offending organ vigorously. Liking the effect produced, he repeats.

"I am going to speak of drudgery with regards to inspiration. The passage I am thinking of par-tic-u-lee follows:—It is a case of lack of comprehension. We are quite likely to overlook a good many things between ourselves and what we are looking at." (Lost the thought here but I will continue.)

"I'll follow you anyway you go" (this was distinctly oratorical and was accompanied with a majestic sweep or his hand.)

The lecturer now takes time to rub his hands and squint at the crowd. He digresses a little to tell us of ee-ro-plans. Then the speaker finds himself again.

"The vision is one thing and the task another. Somewhere I read I don't know where. A man gets in a valley, in slime, mire, and all sorts of tangle. He is about to turn back although he can't see it he is the man who comes out and sticks."

About this time I was afraid of breaking up the party so I placed self respect to the fore and tried to prevent my hilarity from affecting my neighbors. Yes, chapel is compulsory. We had to listen. I understand he will repeat his lecture on the composite self next fall. I'm coming back to hear it.

A Few Were Injured and Others Suffered

Conditions were totally different in the Zoo in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred nineteen. To be sure there were enough cages to hold the animals but the proprietors decided to reduce overhead charges to a minimum and risk the possibilities of a serious conflict. And so it happened that one of the three cages was closed for the season and the cubs were allowed to live, yes, to intermingle intimately with the bears. Friction, under such conditions, was well nigh unavoidable.

The fears often expressed by the chief director were at last realized. A short time after the animals were put on exhibition, the crash came. Like a bolt from a clouded sky came that cry of dispair. The younger bears met the challenge and the older inhabitants of the Zoo took heart. The cubs marshalled their forces, drew their lines together, and the battle began. Bitter but bloodless was the result of the first clash. From one end of the old confine clear across to its furthermost bars surged the contending masses. But it was preordained that they should be separated. The cubs withdrew in order, their backs bristling in the light of the moon. They executed a snake dance and shouted in derision in front of the cage given by Mr. Parker.

But there is an end to all good things. Some of the older bears delighted by the exhilaration caused by the warfare, urged the younger bears to try conclusions further. The task was comparatively easy. Leaders had already been chosen. It was but the work of the moment to grab clubs and start in pursuit.

Oh! What a night! The cage given in memory of the man who established the principle of separation of Church and State was invaded. Ministerial traditions were thrown to the winds. It was a bloody fight. Four of the cubs were struck to the ground. The Red Cross was called in. Many of the younger bears were bruised but a just pride prevented any report of casualties. The smoke of battle gradually cleared away and wounded were rushed to the hospital.

As is always the rule the town gazette got hold of the details of the night's frolic (and he happened to be a particularly disagreeable reporter on the ease. so undue publicity was given the affair). By this time the keepers became excited and a bad matter was made worse. A conference was called and this enlightened gathering decided that something would be done. Upon sober thought the bears recognized the seriousness of the situation. A popularly elected council of bears held a confab and made certain recommendations. However, the keepers were obstinate and decided to go through with the formality of a mock-trial. It was regular most of the way. A presiding officer sat in a chair. Witnesses were called to give evidence. Yes, the court even went so far as to fine a witness for contempt of court. At length a decision was rendered. That verdict disregarded the findings of the supreme council of bears. The punishment was graded yet it concerned only the younger bears. One leader was forced from the Zoo and the surrounding territory for a whole year. Another suffered banishment until the beginning of the next fall opening. A third, the one fined for contempt of court, was allowed to depart until the next exhibition. And so it chanced that the court was closed and the keepers, confident that they had done their duty towards bears and their idea of justice, inhaled, exhaled and calmly waited for the church bells to ring on the next Sunday morning.

And it came to pass when the younger generation heard the message they were righteously indignant. Threats of secession were heard on all sides. The keepers were as firm as the rock of Gibraltar. They refused to budge. A strike was in prospect. However, the older bears always have the interests of the Zoo at heart. So Zoo was placed before caste and the injustice was tolerated.

Now such a disturbance is liable to disturb the peace of any well regulated menagerie. Still there is hope. Light may, in time, invade the darkest recesses. Such a conflict may never again disturb the quiet of our Zoo and greater skill may be exercised in the administration of all our affairs. The new plan of our council may solve many problems. May such a shadow never again cross our path.

(Signed) THE FACULTY

INFANTS

1920

Ye carious, draggletailed mooncalves, ye pestiferous conglomerations of tainted streptococci, ye squalid scurrilous larvae of allolobophora gathered from the stys and fumiers from Hades to Halifax abase themselves in precipitate genuflexions, incline their ears with minute circumspection to the following injunction laid down by the glorious class of 1919

On all occasions thou shalt wear thy dipolychromatic skull cover removing it instantaneously at the approach of an Upperclass man or member of the Faculty.
Before retiring and upon rising prostrate thyself and humbly repeat "Je suis un ane."
Ever be present at all celebrations, mass-meetings and swat-fests.
Ye shall refrain from intercourse with the Great God Nicotine except in thine own hovel.

Thou shalt however produce Fatimas and lucifers at a moment's notice for the convenience of Upperclass men.
Herd not together in opposition to these mandates for the Androscoggin hides many a dark and dirty deed.
Each day hoard up sundry jitneys for the Athletic Association.
Suffer not to let thyself be seen with any member of the so called fair sex.
Emblems of thy Prep-school days MUST be relegated to the dark recesses of thy carpet bags.

Remember that a sweater worn downtown will start the sweat-er the PADDLING SQUAD.
Use thy voice with vehemence at all athletic contests.
Learn all thy Alma Mater's songs and yells.
Ever rise to give thy seat on the Figure 8 to ladies and Upperclass men.
So display these rules that thou will constantly be reminded of thy subservience to the Class of

CRAZY CRAVEN CALVES

Ye insignificant, contemptible, zooid hermaphrodites, that assortment of herbariums and zorilla disguised as mortals, calling yourselves the illiterate, ignoble, vitiated mob of 1922, hearken ye to this masterly edict from the RIP RAM ROARING LIONS of this wondrous institution, the GUARDIANS of the noble traditions, and PROTECTORS of the rights of upperclass-men, the FAMOUS, MAGNANIMOUS and RENOWNED

CLASS OF 1921

Regard this decree with reverence lest thou strike thy foot against a stone or thy termoliwadel against a section of some tree. Ye who follow not the straight and narrow path, prepare thee for thy DOOM.

OH, SOPHOMORE

Take my life and let it be
Consecrated, '21, to thee;
Take my nighttimes and my days,
I will sing your ceaseless praise.
And my legs, let them skidaddle,
Lest they feel the SOPHOMORE paddle.
Take my feet and let them be
Always beautiful and swift for THEE.
Take my voice, and let me sing
Always, only for my Kings.

ART. 1. To be learnt and repeated upon request:

Our betters who are at Bates.
Hallowed be 1921.
THY glory come.
THY will be done
Down town as it is on the campus.
Give us this day the right to live.
And paddle us not as we should be paddled.
And lead us not to Pole Hill, but show us our ignorance:
For THINE is the power and the right.

ART. 2. Traditions which must be followed:

Keep always on hand some smokes for the upperclassmen

Rise from thy seat upon the entrance of a SOPHOMORE into thy worthless presence.

Wear always sconce cover that thou may be able to lift it upon the approach of SOPHOMORES, ladies or faculty.

Wear not any sweaters down street nor at any times any thing bearing the insignia of the kindergarten from which ye have strayed. Neither shalt thou wear a sweater which bears the colors of thy Alma Mater.

The use of tobacco is forbidden save in thine own hovel.

Last but not least. Thou shalt not speak to or walk with any member of the opposite sex.

ART. 3. The way of the transgressor is hard.

Fail not to report the violators of this edict to thy MASTERS, the NOBLE CLASS of 1921, or thou shalt suffer the torments of L'enfer.

Acknowledgment

THE MANAGER desires to acknowledge the courteous treatment and hearty co-operation of the Faculty, the entire force of the Merrill & Webber Company, Mr. Woodcock, Mrs. Dora Clark Tash, and the Editor. The above named, have contributed liberally from their wide experience and to their efforts the success of the Annual is in no small measure attributable.

WM. A. SAWYERS, Mgr.

WE HOPE that the result of our labors will merit the approval of the student body. We have attempted to further develop the ideal of a college annual at Bates. The difficulties which crossed our path have been left behind and we accept full responsibility for the publication.

The editor is grateful to all those who, as members of the staff or as friends, have aided in the preparation of the annual. The work of the manager has gone far towards making a more attractive book. "THE MIRROR" must now rest on its merits.
